Two Inmates Escape From Within O.S.R. Walls

YOUTHS CRAWL THROUGH SHAFT TO FREEDOM

Believed to Have Stolen Car Later Seen Near Dayton; Police on Trail.

BOTH FROM MONTGOMERY

Glattke Says Pair Got Away After 7 P. M. Check-up Sunday Night.

Two Ohio State Reformatory inmates who staged a successful getaway from within the walls last night were being hunted by police officers throughout Ohio today, though the search centered in the southwestern section of the state.

The fugitives, both from Montgomery county were believed to have stolen a car here shortly after making their escape and were believed to have headed toward Dayton, in Montgomery county. A car with a Mansfield license was sighted by officers there, who notified police here of the license plate.

A check developed that the car had been stolen from the garage of Charles Zitzer, 321 Park avenue west, shortly after 10 p. m.

The inmates, James Mayer and Frank Grigsby, staged the first successful break from inside the walls of the reformatory in a year, and the second such break in the last 12 years, according to Supt. Arthur L. Glattke.

A year ago, two inmates escaped over the wall by means of an improvised rope ladder.

Mayer and Grigsby escaped sometime between 7 and 10 p. m. yseterday. Glattke said they were accounted for at the 7 p. m. count, but were missing at the check-up at 10 p. m.

Investigation developed that they had pried loose the grating from a ventilator in the east cell block, and had crawled through the large pipe to the outside of the building. The pipe's intake is near the greenhouse, Glattke said.

Officers immediately started a search for the pair, but were unable to find any trace of them.

Both Mayer and Grigsby were committed to the Reformatory in 1937. Mayer was serving one to 20 years on an auto theft charge and Grigsby was doing one to seven for grand larceny.

O. S. U. TRUSTEES CHOOSE BEVIS

Professor at Harvard, Former Ohio Supreme Court Jurist, Named President.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Howard L. Bevis, Harvard university professor and former Ohio Supreme court judge, was elected president of Ohio State university today.

The election by unanimous vote of the board of trustees, filled a vacancy that had existed since July 1, 1938, when Dr. George W. Rightmire retired and precipitated the greatest hunt for a president in the history of Ohio State, fifth largest university in the nation.

Bevis accepted immediately and will take over the post as soon as he can do so conveniently.

The board of trustees held numerous meetings during the 18 months the school was without a president, but either could not agree on a candidate or found the man upon whom they agreed unwilling to accept the position.

Bevis, 55 years old, is a member of a pioneer Ohio family and had been active in state governmental affairs until his appointment in 1935 as professor in Harvard's school of business administration. He is a native of Bevis, in Hamilton county.

He entered educational work in 1921 as a member of the faculty of the University of Cincinnati and headed the school's law department 10 years.

In 1931, former Gov. George White named him state director

2 DIE IN PACT

Husband, Wife Kill Selves in Suicide Agreement.

CINCINNATI — (UP) — William H. Weyer, 37, a die-maker, and his wife, 34, made a suicide agreement today and then killed themselves with 16-gauge shotguns.

Police were told that illness and worry caused the couple to decide upon suicide.

Weyer died of a head wound and his wife of a stomach wound. Before she died, Mrs. Weyer said: "he sat on the floor and I sat on the davenport. I made a mistake. I should have shot myself in the head, too."

Their children, Gertrude, 10, and Geraldine, 5, went to live with their grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Dilz, three weeks ago.

QUINTS BOOKED FOR N. Y. FAIR

Proceeds From Exhibit to be Given to Red Cross.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The war succeeded where Grover Whalen failed and as a result the famous Dionne quintuplets will appear at the New York World's fair this year, it was learned today.

All receipts of the quintuplets exhibition, which will be a replica of their nursery home at Callender, Ont., will be donated to the Canadian Red Cross.

Whalen tried unsuccessfully last year to book the quins for the fair. And then came the war which is expected to make the five famous sisters the most popular exhibit at the fair.

Two Daring Finn Skiiers Sneak Past Reds, Blow Up Rail Line

By WEBB MILLER, United Press Staff Correspondent

HELSINKI, Finland—Two Finnish soldiers have penetrated far behind the Russian lines and dynamited the Russian Leningrad-Murmansk railroad, supply line for the Russian army in the far north, it was understood today.

Expert skiiers, the Finnish soldiers started out alone from their lines with as much dynamite as they could carry, it was said, and made their way through the snow by night, camping in forested areas by day.

Their dynamite exploded on the railroad tracks, they made their way back in safety, it was reported.

The expedition, effected under almost impossible conditions with temperatures ranging around 40 degrees below zero, took nine days in all, the skiiers as usual having only what supplies they could carry.

This and other exploits were not discussed officially, because of military secrecy. But it was said that there have been numerous expeditions of the sort which, if they could be told, would rival the operations of the British Lawrence of Arabia in the blistering Near East deserts during the World war.

Each of these expeditions is a threat to Russia's entire supply line for food as well as materials to the frozen north.

The Russians continued today their tactics of short, sharp thrusts at various points in the Karelian isthmus and north of Lake Ladoga. In each instance, dispatches said, artillery fire has preceded the attack. The Finns say there has been no result, aside from a mounting casualty list, and add that at some points the Finns have improved their positions. In this connection it was said that hopes of the Russians to advance over the now frozen lakes had failed everywhere because the Finns had anticipated such tactics.

Work for G. O. P.? Not Bolesky; He 'Declines'

George Bolesky, Democratic stalwart, who retired as superintendent of sewer maintenance last week, has no desire to work for or with Republicans, he indicated today when he declined Mayor William J. Locke's appointment as a laborer in that department.

Bolesky was the only Democrat named Saturday when Mayor Locke announced eight appointments to the sewer and street departments. He was to have served under S. C. LeMunyon who was named superintendent.

"Just a line to express to you my appreciation for retaining me as a city employe in the sewer department, but due to anticipated unpleasant relationship that would come to me working with your group, I must decline this opportunity to serve you in this capacity," Bolesky wrote the mayor.

GEORGE BOLESKY

Locke said he "regretted" that the former superintendent of the department had not seen fit to accept the position and that he would make another appointment within the next few days.

Although observers believed that Bolesky had been picked to assist LeMunyon who is less experienced with the sewer system, Locke denied that this had been the case.

"Bolesky was kept because of his experience but the new superintendent has had experience in sewer work," Locke said. "He was employed under a former administration."

The mayor said he was not sure what administration LeMunyon had served or how long he had been in the department.

COLD TO STAY, CITY IN PATH OF NEW ICY BLAST

Mercury Hits Lowest Mark in Four Years Over Week-End, 7 Below Zero Recorded.

Winter eased its grip on Ohio today after bringing Mansfield the coldest weather in four years Sunday when an official seven below zero was recorded here by Otto Sprunger, cooperative government observer.

Relief from the week-old cold wave was expected to be short-lived, however, since a new frigid blast was reported headed toward Ohio from the west.

The weatherman predicted mostly cloudy and colder weather tonight and fair and continued cold Tuesday. From the four-year low mark yesterday morning, the temperature climbed to 22 in the afternoon and today's low was a comparatively "warm" 16 above.

The season's record low Sunday, which came unexpectedly after the mercury had climbed to 23 above Saturday afternoon, was the coldest reported in Mansfield since Feb. 20, 1936 when a low of 12 below was recorded. For six consecutive days that month, the temperature was at least seven below zero.

Lone Accident Reported.

Despite a two-inch snowfall during the past 24 hours, which made streets and highways slippery, only one traffic accident was reported in Richland county and no one was injured.

At least 15 violent deaths were reported in Ohio, a number of which were traceable directly to the extreme cold and ice-coated streets and highways.

The lone Richland county accident, which occurred at 8 p. m. Sunday on route 30-N near Ontario, resulted in the filing of a charge of careless and reckless

Their next vacation will come Feb. 22 when the schools are dismissed for a day in observance of George Washington's birthday. Spring vacation—one week—comes in March.

Students of the parochial and county schools returned to school last Wednesday following a week's Christmas vacation.

43 TANKS CAPTURED

40 Below Zero Weather and Stubborn Resistance Stalls Russian Invasion.

(By Associated Press)

HELSINKI—Finnish forces wiped out the 44th Russian division, killing thousands and taking more than 1,000 prisoners, near Suomussalmi, a special army communique reported today.

It was in the northern part of the Suomussalmi region, at the narrow "waistline" of central Finland, that the Finns, a week ago, reported the virtual destruction of the invaders' 163rd division.

In the new victory the communique said large quantities of arms and material, including 43 tanks, were captured.

Heavy fighting has been reported in the Suomussalmi sector for days but today's communique was the first mention made of Russia's 44th division.

(Neutral military experts have estimated there are from 15,000 to 17,000 men in a Russian division.)

The severest January cold in years—temperatures ranging 15 to 40 degrees below zero fahrenheit—has combined with stubborn Finnish defense and counterattacks to halt the Red invasion, with 5,000 square miles, one forty-eighth of Finland, in Russian hands after 40 days of fighting.

Red Skiiers Fail.

British Say They'll Continue to Stop and Search Ships.

LONDON — (INS) — The British government today stood on its right under international law to stop and search all foreign vessels for contraband, including those of the United States.

In answer to a protest from Washington over the stopping of American vessels and a subsequent warning that Britain would be held responsible for any damage to United States ships taken into combat zones, the foreign office declared American regulations in this respect were at variance with international law.

The British government spokesman said: "It is within the British right to take American ships into contraband control ports."

Scarface Goes to Home Near Baltimore; Secrecy Ended, His Brother Says.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Al Capone, one time Chicago gang chieftain, was released from Union Memorial hospital today and went immediately to his new home, a duplex cottage, here in Baltimore.

Capone had been at the hospital more than a month undergoing treatment for paresis. He came here immediately after his release from the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

His new home is located at 5708 Pimlico road near the famous Pimlico race track.

Capone left the hospital shortly after dawn this morning. None except the family and hospital authorities knew that he was going to his new home until the trip was completed. Then John Capone announced his brother was at home; that the new residence no longer need-

Renew Pressure On Bromfield To Enter Congressional Race

Refusing to concede that Author Louis Bromfield had closed the door to his invitation to become a candidate for 17th district congressman, Roe Wolfe, Ashland county Democratic executive committee chairman, prepared to renew his plea today.

Wolfe said today that he had wired Bromfield this morning but would not disclose the contents of the message.

He did say however, that he expected to be able to announce "something definite" tomorrow.

It was believed that Wolfe was seeking a more definite answer from the author than the one contained in a telegram he received last night in which Bromfield said he was prepared to accept the invitation if his candidacy would help the Democratic party in Ohio

He added, "My hesitancy arises only from a feeling existing obligations make it impossible to undertake an extended campaign."

Bromfield in Palm Springs, Calif., told the News-Journal Saturday night that it was "impossible" for him to undertake a campaign due to other obligations.

Wolfe disclosed Saturday that he had wired Bromfield asking him to run for the congressional post vacated last week by the death of William A. Ashbrook of Johnstown.

Meanwhile, The Associated Press reported from Washington that Charles West, who was 17th district congressman before Ashbrook, was being quoted there as saying that "Democratic leaders" had urged him to seek Ashbrook's seat.

"I will, he remarked, give serious consideration to their request."

West's last venture into politics was his contest with former governors George White and Vic Donahey for the Democratic senatorial nomination. He came out third.

Jackson Plea For 3rd Term To Steal Dem Dinner Shows

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Attorney General-Designate Robert H. Jackson probably will steal the Jackson day dinner shows tonight with an appeal at Cleveland, O., for re-election of President Roosevelt for a third term.

A word that Jackson intended to propose a third term leaked out here today.

Jackson has just been promoted from solicitor general to attorney general and is being talked about by New Deal Democrats as the man who should be nominated for vice president if Mr. Roosevelt steps aside for some compromise presidential candidate such as Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

The president will speak at the main party rally which takes place here tonight on a $100-a-plate scale at the Mayflower hotel. He promised a non-partisan speech instead of the political appeal with which he usually addresses these gatherings.

It is estimated that the Jackson day dinner will pick up around $400,000 for the 1940 Democratic campaign.

Waits 45 Years For Husband To Return---Asks Divorce Now

Forty-five years is long enough to wait for her missing husband to return, Mrs. Stella Hafner, 30 Daisy street, had decided today, so she filed a divorce action against him in common pleas court.

Mrs. Hafner, who is about 65, charges wilful absence in her petition, asserting that her husband, Frederick Hafner, left home in 1895 and has never returned or written to her.

The couple had been married five years when Hafner left his wife and two small children without a word about where he was going. Mrs. Hafner states in her petition

She has no idea where he went, but she thinks he may have gone "out west" to find work. The children have had homes of their own for a number of years.

Atty T. Y. McCray, who represents Mrs. Hafner, said she had long since given up hope of seeing her husband again, but she was seeking a divorce to clear the title to her home. The deed is in both their names and although the Ohio law declares a man legally dead after he has been absent seven years McCray said it was still possible Hafner might return sometime and claim an interest in the property.

A wife can file suit for divorce in Ohio on grounds of wilful absence after her husband has been absent for three years.

TELL BILL GOODBYE + + + + + +

By MARIE BLIZARD

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

Fabienne opened the door that led to the steps of her apartment house and the wind caught at the skirts of her coat, whipping it around her legs. The wind had died earlier in the evening, but now it was up again like a December gale, nipping her fingers before she could get her gloves on.

If it weren't so late in March, she thought, I'd almost think we were in for a blizzard.

The engine of her car was cold. It took a long time for her to get started and she indulged in a hearty "Damn!" Every moment meant so much to her. She wondered when Chris had risen from her drugged sleep and left. Surely, she hoped, it couldn't have been very long ago. Bill had said those sleeping tablets would put a hearty man to sleep for ten or twelve hours. It was less than six since she had left Chris in her deep sleep.

The car jerked, was still, jerked again, and finally the motor turned over. She sped rapidly into Fifth avenue, was halted by a red light, turned east and was again stopped by a red light. So it went all the miles of her route across town and up Fifth avenue, Park avenue and at last onto the East River drive to East End avenue and the Park-Plaza hospital.

* * *

The street was utterly deserted as if men had been driven from the streets by the gale that swept icily over it.

There was one car, an open roadster, parked half a block away from the apartment building that housed the hospital.

As she passed it, Fabienne's eye was caught by the colors of the license plates and a message that flashed to her brain. She backed her car up beside it and looked again.

The plates were California issued.

She got out of her car and went over to the small roadster and with the light of her cigaret lighter, cupped against the wind in her hand, she read the initials on the door: C. M. P. It was Christine's car! It must have been standing there since she whisked Christine away earlier in the afternoon.

It did not mean, she told herself she didn't feel, that Christine was at the hospital.

She ran her car in ahead of Christine's, a hundred feet or so away from the entrance, and got out, debating the wisdom of asking the doorman if Mrs. Parsons had come in. Lewis would still be on duty and surely he would remember her distraught passenger of the afternoon.

But Lewis was not in the foyer. A sleepy-eyed elevator boy, poring earnestly over an evening tabloid, looked up, recognized her and pulled himself to his feet.

"Evening, Robert. Where's Lewis?" she asked.

"Eatin' his supper, Miss Seymour. I'll take you up."

"Anyone else come in lately, Robert?"

"I dunno, miss. I ain't been here long. Ain't no doctors in, though. They all left by ten."

He let her off into the dim foyer where night lights burned.

A white-clad nurse appeared silently, showing traces of hastily wakened sleep. "Oh, it's you, Miss Seymour," she whispered.

"Good evening, Miss Brown," Fabienne answered in a like whisper, her eyes sweeping the sleepy calm of the waiting room and the shadows beyond. "I hope I didn't disturb you? I—I left my pocketbook here this afternoon and I—I thought I'd stop in to get it."

"Where did you leave it?" the nurse asked her, trying to hide a yawn.

* * *

Fabienne wondered if she'd keep her from going up to the second floor where the private rooms were, and how she could make her errand seem casual yet persistent.

"I'm not quite sure," she said. "I think I had it in—in—" Then she smelled coffee boiling and noted the half-turn of the nurse's head in the direction of the pantry at the end of the hall. She said, "I'll look for it and slip right out, Miss Brown. You'd better catch your coffee before it boils over."

The nurse smiled gratefully. "The wind always makes me feel sleepy," she said. "I simply have to have something to eat and a little coffee to keep me awake."

Casually Fabienne said, "It must be hard to keep awake. It's so quiet and calm in this hospital at night. Nothing exciting ever happens, does it?"

"Very seldom," Miss Brown said importantly.

"And the last of the visitors is out by half past nine?"

"Oh, always."

"Did you have many tonight?" Fabienne asked conversationally.

"No. No one, as a matter of fact."

Fabienne felt her breath escape with a sigh of relief.

Anyone not connected with the hospital would be unlikely to know about the private elevator which was the only one that would take a visitor to the second or third floors of the hospital. Therefore, if Chris had returned to the hospital, she must have got off at this floor and Miss Brown would have seen her. But Miss Brown had said there were no visitors.

"Would you care for a cup of coffee, Miss Seymour?"

Fabienne said, "No thanks. I'll have a look in my office. I may have left my purse somewhere else."

As a gesture, she went into her office and opened a drawer and closed it and then went back to the elevator to ring for the car to take her down.

With her finger on the button she was impressed with the dimness of the foyer and the eerie quiet over all. The car door always made a noise when it was slid back but if Miss Brown had been deep in a nap, she might not have heard it.

It was only a step around the corridor to the winding stairs that led to the second floor.

It was hardly likely that Chris had been able to get into the hospital without someone being aware of her presence, but Chris was desperate, and Chris was determined.

Fabienne did not ring the elevator bell; on soundless soled shoes, she stole through the corridor and let herself out the door into the fire-proof stairway hall. She went up the stairs and opened the door to the next floor. She did it very softly, not wishing to rouse any of the nurses.

There would only be one — Sonny's nurse—since there were no other patients on the second floor.

Fabienne hastily fabricated a story to tell the nurse if she should meet her. She took a few tentative footsteps along the corridor in the director of Sonny's room, and grew bolder, and more relieved, as her nostrils caught the aroma of coffee once more. The nurse would all be in the dining room for their midnight supper.

* * *

Out of doors, on the edges of the gale that shrieked and whistled around the towers of the building, the echo of city clocks striking the hour of midnight was borne through the open windows.

The door of Sonny's room was open a crack. It was dark in the room where only a faint beam from a lighted window across the court lifted the stygian blackness.

Then her blood froze!

There was a figure moving toward the window, a shadow of a woman. The window was wide open. From the window there was a sheer drop to the courtyard, twelve stories below!

"I knew you'd come," Chris said. "You'll take him out for me?"

Fabienne said, "Come away from the window, Chris. I'll call for help in a minute."

"No, you won't," Chris answered calmly. "Because, if you do, I'll step out. I've got him wrapped in blankets. Pick him up. Pick him up—or else—"

Fabienne picked up the sleeping child. He was light as a baby for all his blankets.

"Take him out the door to the elevator and I'll tell you what to do," Chris directed.

Today's Bride Serious About Being Successful Homemaker

BY RUTH CHAMBERS

Although the bride of today may not have learned to cook in her mother's kitchen, don't let anyone tell you that she takes her homemaking responsibilities any less seriously than her mother or her grandmother. It is true that today there are school and social activities to take up the youngster's attention, and after school days she is likely to find herself a job.

Dinner Menu

Tomato Juice
Beef Plate
Green Beans
Ribbon Noodles
Apple and Raisin Salad
Cherry Cobbler
Coffee

But when she marries, she wants to be a good homemaker, especially a good cook, and she goes about achieving her goal with all the intelligence she used in being a successful "career girl." Therefore we really don't need to worry about today's bride, even though she hasn't received the training which was considered essential in grandma's time.

Modern Equipment Aids.

There are many things that make it a much easier task to learn to cook today than ever before. The new equipment, with controlled heat and oven regulators, make for an accuracy which could only be obtained by long experience in former times. There are explicit, detailed recipes available now. Science has turned its searchlight on cookery methods, and trial and error methods have been replaced by accurate guides. The knowledge which the older cooks learned through years of experience, the younger women acquire in a short time by following carefully chosen directions.

The goodness which lay behind the "good plain cooking" of the good cooks of the past is found to be the result of scientific methods, though they may not have realized this. They only knew that by following certain methods they obtained the best results.

Slow Cooking for Meat.

Before the days of oven and meat thermometers, it was discovered that a "slow" oven produced a juicy, tasty roast. The best meat cooks placed their pot-roasts on the back of the ranges and cooked them slowly, until the meat was deliciously tender. When cooking meat in water, they let it simmer instead of boiling it. Now we know that this is the right method because temperatures that are too high harden the fibers of meat.

Thus it is that the methods of today as taught to the beginning cook are actually based upon the ways of the best cooks of the past.

"Boiled" Dinner. With Beef Plate.

Brown beef plate in a little hot lard. Then cover with hot water and let it cook slowly until tender. Add green beans, or other vegetables such as carrots, potatoes, turnips, or parsnips, just long enough before serving for them to be done. A four-pound piece of meat requires two to two and one-half hours for cooking.

Serve the meat on a bed of ribbon noodles which have been cooked in boiling salted water.

A piquant sauce to accompany the meat is made by adding one-half cup of horseradish and one tablespoon lemon to a medium cream sauce.

Pot-Roast With Prunes.

3 to 4 pound chuck or rump pot-roast
3 table-spoons lard
½ pound dry prunes soaked.
2 onions, sliced.
4 whole cloves
1 cup cider or diluted vinegar
1 cup water
Salt and pepper

Brown the meat on all sides in hot lard. Add onions. When the meat and onions are both browned, add the soaked prunes, cloves, salt and pepper, water and cider. Reduce temperature, cover and let simmer slowly, adding more water from time to time if necessary.

Braised Spareribs.

Place spareribs in a baking dish and allow them to brown, uncovered, in a hot oven. Season with salt and pepper. Add one-half cup water, cover tightly, reduce the temperature of the oven to about 300 to 350 degrees F. and cook slowly until done, about 40 minutes.

Vegetables may be added to the spareribs after browning and cooked with the meat. Or cored apples, with the centers filled with brown sugar and nut meats, may be placed around the spareribs to cook, to add a touch of style to this old favorite.

MADE MOST OF YULE VACATION

College Students Slept, Worked and Had Social Activities.

WESTERVILLE, O.—(AP)—Otterbein collegians heartily approved of the long winter nights during their Christmas vacation.

A student survey showed 75 per cent had "plenty of sleep" more than anything else during the holidays. More than half admitted, however, that dates occupied considerable time.

The figures showed also that 61 per cent of the men and 26 per cent of the co-eds did vacation work.

COAL TOWN CELEBRATES

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa. —(U.P.)— This little anthracite town celebrated the 120th anniversary of the birth of the first white child in the Mamoney valley. The child, according to records, was christened Josiah White Erskine Hazzard George Augusta Frederick Hauto Brink. Josiah W. E. H. G. A. F. H. Brink became a miner and died in 1878 at the age of 59.

"Been Years Since I Felt So Good," Says Tire Co. Worker

Was miserable every day until he took Vendol and got amazing relief. Advises everyone to try famous medicine.

MR. HARRY WEAVER

"Everyone in this city who suffers like I used to, will surely find it worth while to see the Vendol Man and learn more about this grand medicine," said Mr. Harry Weaver of 30 Rowland Ave., who has been employed by the Mansfield Tire Co. for over 23 years, and a substantial citizen, in a recent endorsement given the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store.

"For some time I had not been feeling like myself but was constipated and all out of sorts with everything. This constipated condition made me nervous and jumpy and kept me from getting a full night's sleep, the next morning I'd awaken feeling tired, muscles felt sore and stiff which took an hour or two to feel limbered up and ready to start the day's work. Also, it kept my stomach upset so that what I ate turned sour, bloated me with gas, and felt as though I had a lump in my throat.

"I heard a lot about Vendol and how it helped so many people living all around here with the same troubles as mine, so I decided that I would give Vendol a trial.

"It wasn't long in proving to me that here was exactly the medicine I needed because it promoted the most thorough easiest bowel actions I'd had in years, so now I have taken several bottles and it has been years since I've felt so good. Now, I enjoy restful sleep and never awaken with a tired, achy feeling, no more dizziness or headaches, and I enjoy my three meals because I never have any gas, sourness, bloating or other upset stomach conditions.

"I'm glad to say that Vendol has my heartfelt recommendation and I hope everyone needing a good laxative medicine will get Vendol."

Why not give Vendol a chance to help you, too? The Vendol Man is daily at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and 4th Sts., and will gladly explain all about it and advise you honestly whether or not he thinks it will help you. Vendol is also sold by most all other leading druggists.

Many an Englishman Prefers Trenches to High Taxes, Wartime Living Cost Worries

EDITOR'S NOTE: Hundreds of thousands of words have been written about the European war, but very few about the home folks in the countries at war. So the AP feature service asked correspondents in Great Britain, France, and Germany just how the war was hitting Mr. Average Man. Their answers are given in three stories, of which this is the first.

BY DWIGHT PITKIN
Associated Press Writer.

LONDON—Many of the stay-at-homes in this war would just as soon be in the front line trenches.

What with paying all-time high income taxes, trying to make ends meet in spite of bigger bills for groceries, gasoline (if they can get it), and a general 10 per cent jump in the cost of living, people on the British home front find that war, today's style, does not call for brass bands and whoopee.

In 1914, the Tommy's attitude was, "The Kaiser is getting a bit thick, it's time to do something about him." Today's attitude towards Hitler is much the same, but Tommy is much more sophisticated. Flag-waving and pinning feathers on lapels of "slackers" are out.

The man-in-the-street generally is reserved, rather shy, far from warlike in his talk. So far, the Germans are still Germans; they're never referred to, as in 1914, as "Huns." There is respectful silence when newsreels show the burials for German aviators brought down in raids on the Firth of Forth.

When British statesmen talk about the war against "Hitlerism" it's no generality even to the sophisticated Englishman. He claims he has a real grudge against Hitler.

Even for a year before the outbreak of actual warfare, he asks, was not the German chancellor upsetting his life and making him jittery by springing "crises" on his cherished weekends?

Picture the average Englishman in peacetime. He had a cozy home with a flower garden. If he had the income, all the luxuries of the world were at his command. When he awoke in the morning the maid brought him a piping hot cup of tea. Then he breakfasted on bacon and eggs, kippers and toast. He rode to work in a comfortable, fast train.

He lunched on roast beef and Yorkshire pudding with cheap beer and without thought of stinting on the pie—tart, he called it. Between 4 and 5 o'clock he leisurely had tea and cakes. And then about 9 p. m. he had supper at home with the family, with time beforehand to work in the garden.

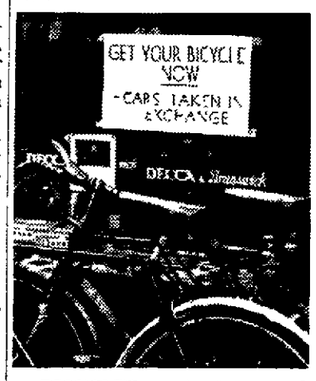
A General Mess.

Now his wife and children have been sent to the country to live among strangers. He has to brew his own breakfast tea, fry his own bacon and eggs. Lately there has been no bacon from Denmark. For economy, the maid has had to go. The kitchen sink is piled with dishes. The house is a general mess.

He is in a surly mood by the time he starts for work. All trains are packed at rush hours; service has been curtailed to clear lines for movement of vital supplies.

His office or factory looks like a place near the front line trenches. Doors and windows are piled with sandbags. The lighting is bad. No longer has he a full range of the world's foods for lunch.

BRAND NAMES have disappeared in England. The government's "pool" supplies all gas upon presentation of a ration card.



BICYCLES are having record sales.

He can't get his favorite brand of tea in the evening; the government has pooled all brands. To expert tea-drinkers like the English the result is horrible.

To get such staples as meat, sugar and butter his wife must now present ration cards, or soon will have to. She is limited to 12 ounces of sugar a week, 4 ounces of bacon, and 4 ounces of butter.

At sunset, he has to put black shades on all windows. For a fair-sized house, shades cost about $20.

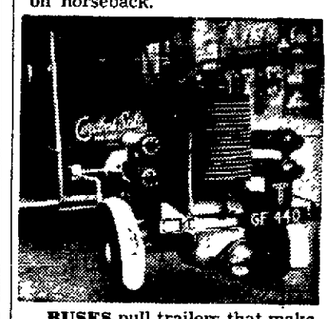
Social Life Blacked Out.

The blackout has virtually stopped social life. To get to his favorite pub or club, a Briton risks breaking his neck walking through pitch black streets with automobiles and buses whizzing past him lighted only by bare flickers.

The biggest worry is the family budget. Take the case of a married man with one child who earns $2,500 a year. In peace time he ran a ten horsepower midget car, went to a movie with his wife about once a week and to a stage play about six times a year.

He drank about three pints of beer a week, didn't indulge in more than three bottles of whisky a year. He and his wife smoked about 20 cigarettes a day, consumed about a quarter of pound of tea and two pounds of sugar a week.

HOUSEWIVES go to market on horseback.



BUSES pull trailers that make gasoline from coal. A thick hose carries the gasoline from the trailer to the bus engine.

It's costly to own an empire "on which the sun never sets" he finds when he figures his wartime taxes. He income tax for 1939-40 comes to $122.50 and for 1940-1941 he will have to pay the government $214. Other taxes figure out like this: Automobile license, $37.50; gasoline tax, $56.00; entertainments, $10; tea tax, $2; sugar, $5.25; whisky, $7.50; beer, $6.50; tobacco, $30.25.

For 1940-41 his automobile license tax will amount to $62.25, if he hasn't sold the car by then. Used car lots already are full of bargains.

The dark side of the picture doesn't mean Englishmen have any intention of yielding to "Ole Hitler," but many of them wonder what's around the corner.

Sometimes, to an American, they remark, "Your country will be the only decent place to live after this war."

New Ways To Prepare Simple Food

BY IRENE OBERLIN,
Ohio Public Service Company Home Service Department.

Now that we all feel as stuffed as the Christmas turkey we are likely to be turning our minds as well as our grateful tummies to simpler fare. So today we offer suggestions for some dishes that are tasty and satisfying but lack the frills of holiday eating.

Ham and Rice.

½ cup rice
1 tablespoon fat
1½ tablespoon onion (minced)
1 can consomme
½ cup water
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
2¼ inch slices ham
1 teaspoon prepared mustard.

Slowly brown uncooked rice in fat, add onion, cook until tender. Add consomme, water and seasonings; cover and steam 20 minutes. Spread one ham slice with mustard. Cover with rice dressing and top with second ham slice. Place in greased casserole and bake 1½ hours at 350 degrees.

Carrot Timbales.

½ cup dry bread crumbs
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons salad oil
½ teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 well beaten eggs
1½ cups grated raw carrot.

Cook bread crumbs and milk until thick; add salad oil, sugar, salt, pepper and parsley. Add eggs combined with carrot. Bake in fluted molds or custard cups about 45 minutes at 325 degrees. Top with hot mayonnaise when ready to serve.

Creole Meat Sauce With Rice.

1 lb. ground beef
¼ cup fat
1 large onion (chopped)
½ cup celery (chopped)
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoonful chili powder
1 can tomato puree
¼ cup green pepper (chopped)
1 cup water
1 cup rice.

Brown meat in hot fat; also brown onions and celery. Add flour and seasonings; then add tomato, pepper and water. Add meat and simmer for 30 minutes. Serve over rice.

Cranberry Mold.

Combine 1 cup ground raw cranberries, 1 cup ground unpared raw apple, and 1 cup sugar. Dissolve 1 package lemon gelatine in 1 cup hot water. Add 1 cup pineapple syrup, chill until partly set. Add cranberry, apple mixture; add ½ cup seeded grape halves and ¼ cup broken nut meats. Pour into six individual molds; chill until firm. Serve on slice of pineapple on crisp lettuce.

Chicken Rice Casserole.

1 cup rice
1 can pimento (chopped)
1½ cups cooked chicken (diced)
½ cup mushrooms
½ cup blanched almonds
1¾ cups chicken broth
1½ tablespoons flour.

Cook rice in boiling salted water, drain and rinse. Add pimento. Place one-third of rice mixture in greased casserole; alternate layer of rice, chicken mushrooms and almonds. Pour over all the thickened chicken broth and bake 1 hour, 350 degrees. Serves 6 to 9.

CASH LOANS

HOW YOU CAN BORROW $100 IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $4.46 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed — No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Prompt, private service.

You can get cash simply and promptly at Household Finance, if you can repay your loan in monthly installments. You may repay in very small installments if you prefer. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner. From the table below you choose the payment schedule which fits your own needs and your own income.

Pick your own payment schedule

Suppose you need $100 and can conveniently repay $9.46 a month. The table shows that your installments will repay a $100 loan from Household Finance in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $4.46 a month for thirty months will also repay a $100 loan.

Find the amount of cash you need in the first column of the loan table. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment that you can conveniently make out of your regular monthly income.

Sooner you repay your loan the less it costs

Note, in the last column of the table, that you may make very small payments if you prefer. See also that the sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. Four installments of $26.26 each, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full. The cost in this case is only $5.04. (All payments shown in the table include the charges. You pay nothing more.)

Youth Asks Sex Education

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Sex isn't going to be a bugbear any more to the high school students of New York state, if the leaders of youthful opinion have their way.

You'll agree that the boys and girls in our high schools are a good deal stabler and sounder and more intelligent than their elders sometimes accuse them of being, when you see that they're meeting the sex problem in a way that the youngsters of 15 and 16 wouldn't have known how to meet it a generation ago.

Now, sex is a fact there's no escaping. Girls and boys in their teens absolutely must know what it means. Are parents equal to bearing the whole of this responsibility? Probably not. In this matter, the most conscientious mothers and fathers, heaven bless them, seem still to be a little clumsy. Teachers, then? No, teachers may teach only the subjects assigned to them by authorities higher up. What's left to the poor youngsters but to transmit to each other the most sacred facts of life in ill-informed whispers?

Well, here is what has happened.

In Albany, every year, delegates from high schools all over the state meet to discuss questions and vote on them in the New York State Hi-Y "Model" legislature.

A few weeks ago these young people unanimously approved a measure authorizing sex education in high schools. Boys and girls working together framed the measure and voted to have the course compulsory during the junior and senior years of high school.

"Colleges give sex education," they argued. "Many of us don't get to college. Therefore, we're entitled to have this important knowledge now."

Not a voice was raised in disagreement.

All this doesn't mean, of course, that these students will have their way. The administrators of the public schools will doubtless pay no immediate attention to them.—though, if this is the case, it will be a pity.

But sooner or later, of course, what these youngsters have so sensibly asked for they will have.

Meanwhile, all we older folk must stop gossiping about children in their teens. Instead, we must admit that they are honest and candid and surprisingly grown-up.

For if they had an unhealthy or too great interest in sex, you wouldn't hear a word from them. But when, on the contrary, they earnestly come right out in the open, and demand the instruction that they feel they need as a guide to behavior, you have to respect them. And admire them, too.

Good parents they will make, in their turn, and good citizens. One hopes they'll have their chance, later on, as real lawmakers.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Jan. 9.

A DAY of strange adventures and memorable experiences is the augury based on the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. An element of the startling, unforeseen and dramatic determines events, which probably involve radical upheavals, new objectives and plans, with a complete change of scene as well as associates. This combination, while drastic and far-reaching in consequence, is likely to bring much unlooked-for happiness and benefit, if managed with calmness and discretion. Elderly opposition must be placated. Romance seems to fill the air with glamor.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a "devastating" year, with swift and dramatic events moving to the fore. These may disrupt old obligations, objectives and ties for new, thrilling and breath-taking experiences of the utmost significance in shaping the future fortune and destiny. Romance or some other high adventure is on the tapis, calling for extreme prudence, wisdom and compromise, with forces set to resist such glamorous programs. The climax of personal happiness is imminent.

A child born on this day may be unusually talented, progressive, ambitious, original and independent, probably attaining conspicuous position or renown in the realm of romance and adventure, science or invention.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Queen Olga's brilliant eyes softened unbelievably as I told her that Philip Veritzen loved her most devotedly. Then a little doubting look crept into them as she smiled affectionately at me.

"I am afraid 'the wish is father to the thought,' dear Madge," she said. "Is this the effectual answer to my query, 'Desire or chivalry?' as the motivation of Philip's proposal to me?"

"It's part of it," I told her, smiling back at her, "but I have proof of what I am saying, which I think will convince even you, and, as a 'doubting Thomas,' you have few equals."

"Tell me, please, quickly," she said, and my qualms at violating a confidence of Philip Veritzen's vanished. After all, I told myself, winning Olga was Philip Veritzen's aim.

"I can tell you in very few words," I said, "and I know you will keep faith with me, and never let Mr. Veritzen know that I have betrayed his confidence."

"Yes, I am sure you know that," she said quietly, and I spoke quickly, lest my qualms come flooding back upon me and prevent the revelation.

"A short time ago Philip Veritzen told me that you refused to marry him because you had no patrimony."

"Yes, that is true," she assented, "but you know that already."

I ignored the answer, and hurried on, anxious to finish the revelation.

"He hoped that if you could have your lost emeralds restored to you, and were financially independent once more, you would give him an affirmative answer to his proposal; therefore, he asked me to find out from you the name of the jeweler from whom those marvelous emeralds were bought."

As if the words had galvanized her into action, Queen Olga rose swiftly from her chair, her clenched hand going involuntarily to her heart.

"No" she breathed. "You can't mean that!"

I saw that she had grasped his plan immediately, and my response was quick.

"Yes, I mean exactly that," I said. "He told me that he intended duplicating the emeralds so that you would never know the imposture, and have them restored to you in such a manner that you would never suspect he had any hand in the restoration."

Her eyes were suddenly starry.

"What a magnificent gesture" she said. "And how like Philip! No one in the world but he would make it."

A smile, infinitely tender, curved her lips, and, to my surprise, there was a hint of amusement in it.

"Poor Philip! The gesture would have been useless as far as my knowing my own emeralds was concerned. Directly after they came into my possession, I summoned a jewel expert, one from a different establishment, indeed, from a different city than the one in which the gems were bought, and had him make a tiny but unmistakable mark on the inside of each gem. I would know my own anywhere."

"Then," I said with disappointment in my voice, "his magnificent gesture would have been as futile as is my betrayal of it."

Diet Most Important To Health

What the grocery boy brings, what foods are placed upon the table, how they are cooked have much to do with the health happiness and good appearance of the family. The commissary department of the home is all important. Cooking is one of the fine arts; any intelligent woman who is boss of the kitchen will enjoy perfecting herself in that art.

Find a home where horrid greasy foods are served and you will find muddy complexions, protesting digestive organs and fretful dispositions. There's no excuse for careless cooking. Newspapers print columns of information and suggestions. Every woman who reads has heard about the balanced diet, the proper proportions of fats, carbohydrates and proteins necessary to keep the human works operating normally.

Facial eruptions, sick hair, ailing teeth, tired eyes, brittle fingernails and jittery nervous systems often will be corrected through intelligent eating habits. It is silly not to give this subject attention. Yet in thousands of homes where money is plentiful the food is so unappetizing that mealtime means nothing, when it should be a festive, happy occasion.

* * *

We're always hearing about the despised spinach. Cooked too much served in a water bath without seasoning, it has no appeal. Removed from the fire while the leaves are still green and fresh looking, drained thoroughly, sprinkled with salt, garnished with butter and hard boiled egg it is a dish fit for a king.

Many a child who refuses to eat, worries his parents to a state of frantic despair, is the victim of poor cooking or lack of variety in the food served. Appearance means everything, daintiness playing an important part in stimulating the gastric juices.

It is particularly necessary that the business girl should look after this matter of fueling. Breakfast is a scramble, often nothing more than a cup of coffee, when she should have fruit, cereal and an egg or bacon. Luncheon is gobbled at a soda fountain. Dinnertime comes and, because of lack of nourishment, she is too tired to eat. Then she blubbers about a complexion that isn't topping.

* * *

Milk is a perfect food, should be included in the diet. It supplies calcium for the welfare of the teeth and as it contains all elements necessary for health, it creates energy.

Orange and tomato juice provide vitamins. A green salad should be eaten once a day; it assists the functions of the intestinal tract.

Eat slowly. Rapid eating is responsible for serious digestive disturbances.

Step-Mother Has Many Problems

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PH. D.

I have greatly admired a number of successful step-mothers. Their achievement of success may be greater than that of a "successful" real mother, since they have so many more problems with which to cope. Here is a letter from one of them.

"Dear Dr. Myers: I am a daily reader of your column and have received a great deal of help from your advice to others.

"Two years ago I married a widower with a boy of eight. I did not know the child before marriage. He had been completely spoiled all his life, and the word 'brat' was much too mild to describe him. This was the opinion of all his relatives.

"Before my marriage, at the age of 26, I had been a successful business girl for ten years. Therefore, I knew nothing of housekeeping and less about bringing up a child.

Hated Each Other.

"During the first year of my marriage the child and I hated each other as much as possible, so that now, even if I begin liking him a little, it is hard to forget that past year of hate, and it continually comes between us. There was a series of fights between my husband and myself over the child at first, although these are very infrequent now. . . .

"The first year of marriage is not easy, with its many necessary adjustments between husband and wife. With that sort of child to make life miserable, I soon had a nervous break-down. Was on the verge of pernicious anemia, but have fought my way slowly back to fairly normal health in two years.

"The boy is greatly changed now, and I have received a great deal of encouragement and praise from my husband's relatives. Nevertheless, he is still very irritating at times. Sometimes we seem to be drawing closer together but then everything is spoiled, and we are back to hating each other."

Worst Is Over.

I wrote her as follows:

"It seems to me you have achieved gloriously, considering the problems you have faced. Surely the worst is back of you. See how far you have come! I do believe you can learn to love that boy since you have seen so great a change in him. Make yourself show interest in what he does and says, and speak to your husband and friends of the boy's actual virtues and improvements. Keep on long enough doing so and you will feel and believe what you say. When you will feel much discouraged, turn to naming to yourself your successes, and you have had so many of them. You are an inspiration, not only to other stepmothers, but also to all parents. Very best wishes to you, the boy and your husband. May you all grow in happiness together."

Anyone who wishes to receive a list of books on marriage, education and preparation for marriage and how to make a go of it, may do so by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

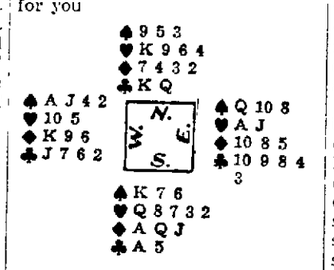
"The Authority on Authorities"

READ THAT MESSAGE

WHEN SIGNALING length in the suit your partner led against No Trump, asking him to continue it, your conventional play is your next-to-highest card when the declarer wins the first trick, then your fourth-best if you later get a chance to lead the suit back. This will help a careful partner to know what is the highest card you still retain, and guide him as to whether he should play a higher one in order to unblock the suit for you.



(Dealer, South. East-West vulnerable.)

South opened this deal with 1-Heart, North bid 2-Hearts, South 2-No Trumps and North passed, fearing that a bid of 3-Hearts from him would urge South to game.

Properly preferring clubs to spades, because the latter suit would furnish an entry to help bring in the former, West led his club 2. After dummy put on the K, East properly played the 9, his next-to-highest which should have shown West he had the 10, but did not because West does not pay attention to such "unimportant" things. The declarer took this with his A, then led the heart 2 to the K and A. East returned the club 4. West playing the 6 and North the Q. Next came four heart tricks. West discarded the club 6, diamond 6 and spade 4, keeping the club J.

When East then won a spade lead with the Q, no matter what he returned, the contract was safe. He fired back a club to the J, but the suit was blocked. West was end-played between spades and diamonds, able to get only two tricks out of them. Had West used the club J on the second trick of that suit, or as one of his discards on hearts, the side would have made three club tricks instead of one and would have set the contract a couple of tricks.

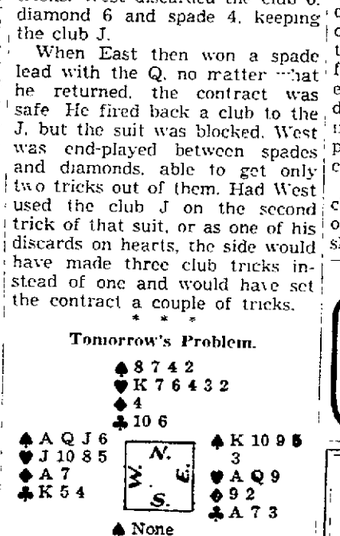
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.

If East opens the bidding here with 1-Spade, what should South do.

'DRESSED WEIGHT'

"Dressed weight" in a fowl, when buying it at the store, means the weight of the fowl, picked but not drawn and with the head and feet on. This is the weight needed to calculate the cooking time and number of servings.

Fill Up Cookie Jar Right Away

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Time to fill up that old cookie jar! If you want to add some new friends to the old favorites, use the recipes given here for cookies that went over well during the recent holidays.

Caraway cookies, good and spicy, are made with two lightly-beaten eggs, one cup sugar, one cup thick cream, three teaspoons baking powder, three cups flour, one teaspoon salt, one and one-half tablespoons whole caraway seeds. Add sugar gradually to beaten eggs, add cream and mix all together. Add flour mixed with baking powder, salt and caraway seeds. Chill the dough, roll on floured board and cut into desired shapes. Bake in moderate oven on greased cookie sheet.

Fruit cookies make an appetizing snack when served with hot coffee, cocoa or afternoon tea. Make with one cup of shortening, one and one-half cups granulated sugar, one egg, three tablespoons molasses, one-half cup sour milk, four cups flour, teaspoon each cloves and cinnamon, one-half teaspoon each nutmeg and salt, two teaspoons baking powder, teaspoon soda, one-half cup chopped raisins, two tablespoons grated orange or lemon rind, one-half cup chopped dates and one cup chopped nuts. Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg, molasses, sour milk. Sift together flour, spices, salt, baking powder and soda, and add dredged fruit and nutmeats. Blend with first mixture. Roll on lightly floured board, cut and bake in a 375-degree F. oven for 15-20 minutes.

Tidbit Balls.

Tidbit Balls are made with one cup each seeded raisins and pitted dates, teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon vanilla, melted dipping chocolate and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Put raisins and dates through food chopper. Add cinnamon, vanilla and salt. Mix thoroughly. Roll into three-fourths-inch balls and dip in melted chocolate. If preferred, the dipping in chocolate may be eliminated, and the tidbits rolled in powdered sugar or shredded cocoanut.

To make a healthsome, delicious morsel, mix one cup honey, one cup sugar, one cup melted shortening and one egg. Add one cup chopped pecans or walnut meats, one cup flour sifted with tablespoon ginger, and two teaspoons baking powder. Mix well and add enough sifted flour to make of a consistency to drop from spoon onto greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderately warm oven, about 375 degrees F.

Tasty Means Of Using Cranberries

Of course you'll enjoy cranberry sauce with chicken and turkey, but don't stop there. Cranberries are too delicious a fruit to limit their use to just a companion-food for turkey.

Start the morning with rich red cranberry sauce on toast instead of the jam or jelly you've been having all year. For luncheon serve a colorful cranberry omelet, or our New England cranberry salad which is a meal in itself.

For dinner, surprise the family with a new cranberry dessert; we've selected two unusually good ones that can be whipped up in five minutes. Cranberries are one of our most healthful fruits. They contain 13 important minerals and vitamins, and now with ready-to-serve cranberry sauce available in cans all the year, it's easy to enjoy cranberry sauce as often as your family wants it.

Cran-Ban.

1 cup cranberry sauce
8 marshmallows
8 almonds
½ cup mashed banana
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup whipping cream

Crush cranberry sauce with a fork. Cut up marshmallows and almonds. Add marshmallows, banana, almonds, and lemon rind to cranberry sauce. Whip cream and fold into cranberry mixture. Chill one hour and serve. Six servings.

Cranberry Souffle.

¼ cup butter
1 cup dry bread crumbs
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons sugar
3 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 can cranberry sauce

Melt butter in upper part of double boiler. Stir in crumbs. Add milk and sugar and cook 15 minutes. Remove from heat and add unbeaten egg whites and slightly crushed cranberry sauce. Pour into greased casserole and place in pan of warm water. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) for one hour. Serve warm or cold with milk or cream.

PASTOR'S HOME SCENE OF MORNING WEDDING

Miss Corinna Weaver, John Paul Price Exchange Vows Early Saturday; Couple Feted At Dinner Party Following Service.

ANOTHER quiet week-end wedding was performed at the Free Methodist church parsonage with Rev. L. C. Watters officiating Saturday at 11 a. m. Miss Corinna Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weaver, 129 Lind avenue, and John Paul Price, son of G. H. Price, sr., Mt. Zion road, exchanged the nuptial vows.

Miss Weaver was attired in a gold colored street-length frock with yellow and mulberry colored accessories and a shoulder corsage of yellow and pink rose buds. Miss Elsie McElvain, cousin of the bride, and George Price, brother of the bridegroom, were the attendants. Miss McElvain wore a rust afternoon dress with black and gold accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink roses.

Miss Margaret Hawks, cousin of the bride, played "I Love You Truly" and the bridal music. Following the ceremony the couple was entertained at dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Litizia, 15 Daisy street. Mrs. Litizia and Mrs. Thomas Wagner, sisters of the bridegroom, and Mrs. George Price, his sister-in-law, were the hostesses.

The bride was a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, and has taught piano here for several years. Mr. Price attended Madison high school, and is now employed at the Empire Steel and Tin Plate company. Mr. and Mrs. Price are making their home at 577 Springmill street.

Informal Theme Marks Affairs of Past Few Days

Week-end parties took the form of informal entertaining as groups gathered "just for fun." Mrs. John Villella was surprised by her husband and her sister-in-law, Mrs. James Villella, last night at Prospect park when 50 relatives and friends gathered to honor her with a birthday party.

The evening was spent in dancing to the music of Bob King's orchestra, after which a buffet luncheon was served. A large cake decorated with a happy birthday legend, and floral patterns decorated the table.

* * *

It was a "bad taste" party out at the home of Emalisa and Mary Norton, 411 Overlook road, Saturday evening when they entertained in honor of their two cousins, Robert and James Kuhn, of Tiffin. Games and dancing were the diversion of the evening after which the young people had a wiener and marshmallow roast in the recreation room.

Guests at the party were Connie Gillig, Doris Scisinger, Ruth Ann Fox, Janet Perez, James Smith, Jack Parker, Larry Orborn, and William Nixon.

Saturday night the Norton home on Overlook road was the scene of a "bad taste" party given by the two Norton daughters for their cousins Jimmy and Robert Kuhn from Tiffin. Informally Speaking...

Monday, Jan. 8.

Lucy, dear:

Winter certainly has been among those present this past week with blizzards and freezing weather—and some folks came back from Florida in just about the very worst part of it! . . . Dr. and Mrs. O. H. Schettler, their sons, Jack and Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Walker, Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Anderson recently returned from Hollywood, Fla., after "having a wonderful time." . . . Pleasant features of their vacation were a Christmas beach party and a fishing jaunt at Everglade City—where they caught some 125 fish! Jack and Dick are returning to Culver Military academy today—with their swimming party in Florida last Monday only a fond memory. . . . On their way home, the Schettlers stopped off at Bok Tower and then took a trip in a glass bottom boat at Silver Springs.

Marianne

* * * * *

In fact, Lucy, this seems to be the time for many residents to return home. . . . Mrs. G. C. Endly arrived today from Flushing, L. I., where she has been visiting with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Endly—and probably the most exciting thing about her trip was getting acquainted with her young granddaughter, Sally, who was just two months old last week. . . . Next to that, undoubtedly the most important thing Mrs. Endly did was see "Gone With the Wind"—she says they had to be at the Capitol theater an hour before the time of the performance in order to get seats, and that even then people were waiting in double lines blocks long—and at the Astor theater, where "Gone" is also playing, seats are sold ahead for 18 weeks!

* * * * *

Some other Mansfielders have just returned from New York City, Lucy—two of our teachers, Naomi Stutz and Wilma Snider—took advantage of their two weeks' vacation and visited in the big city, where they saw Katharine Hepburn, Fred Allen, Fred Waring and of course, our own Jane Wilson.

* * * * *

MRS. James Bailey is back home now, following a vacation of two weeks with her son, James R. Bailey, and his family in Wilmington, Del. . . . Mrs. Amanda Edwards and Gretchen Edwards have returned from Cleveland after visiting there for two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Caton and their son, Richard.

* * * * *

Dorothy and Frederic Wagner, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs Fred W. Wagner, were among the students who returned to Ohio university at Athens yesterday. . . . Dorothy, a junior, is majoring in zoology and chemistry and is planning to be a medical technician. She will leave the university in a year to take a nine-month interneship at Mt. Carmel hospital in Columbus. . . . Aside from the pursuit of her studies, Dorothy also takes an active part in a number of campus activities—she is a member of the Zoology club, a German club, Y. W. C. A., and the Women's Athletic association. . . . She is an officer in her dormitory and serves on the advertising staff of the university magazine. . . . Frederick, who's a freshman at the school, has just pledged Sigma Pi, social fraternity . . . he's also a member of the university's 100-piece band and a pledge of Kappa Kappa Psi, national honorary band fraternity.

* * * * *

EVERY day seems to bring the news of another engagement, Lucy. . . . Dorothy Miller is the proud wearer of a diamond ring she received recently from Roy West of Ashland.

* * * * *

And although many folks have returned from vacations just recently, a number of others are just starting on theirs. . . . The Albert Krauses and daughter, Louise, are leaving this week for West Palm Beach, Fla., where they will join Mrs. Krause's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Orbison, at the El Cid apartments. . . . Mrs. J. J. Shelley and her daughter, Helen, have taken residence at the Hollywood Knickerbocker hotel in Hollywood, Cal., where they're planning to vacation for several months. . . . Rev. W. H Gibson and J. A. Warner of Bellville are in Florida now—visiting in Ft. Lauderdale, Miami, St. Cloud and Winter Haven.

* * * * *

ALL of which would seem to wind up the news for today, Lucy—more next week.

Lovingly,

Marianne

THEATERS

REFERRING to Maureen O'Hara as the screen's newest Cinderella is stretching the imagination a point or two. The lovely heroine of "Jamaica Inn" and "The Hunchback" isn't in the rags-to-riches class at all for she came to the American screen from the Abbey Theater Group in Dublin. Her mother, Rita Fitz Simons, is an established actress of the Abbey Group. Miss O'Hara's first screen test in London won her the leading role opposite Charles Laughton in "Jamaica Inn," and this led to the role of Esmerelda in "The Hunchback." As soon as she had finished that she went to work in "Bill of Divorcement" in the role that gave Katharine Hepburn her first big break in pictures. She is one of the tallest actresses on the screen, standing five foot, seven inches in her bare feet.

* * *

Claire In Garbo Comedy.

No other outstanding actress of the American stage has had worse luck in her screen attempts than Ina Claire, who portrays the jealous grand duchess in "Ninotchka," a Madison theater feature. Miss Claire's charm and distinct talents have never shown to advantage on the screen, and the current role does little for her. Garbo towers above her as Feminist Ninotchka who leaves her stern life in the Soviet to catch a glimpse of Paris. Melvyn Douglas is seen as Leon, who gives Ninotchka a taste of life.

* * *

Distinguished Cast.

Impressive mob scenes add tremendously to the appeal of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which is being shown at the Ohio. There are scenes in where there appears to be thousands of extra players, yet they always have a definite purpose in the action. The cast brings several of the spoken stage's greatest actors to the screen. There is Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Walter Hampden and Fritz Leiber, all distinguished Shakespearean players, and the younger Edmond O'Brien. They appear in support of Charles Laughton.

* * *

Comedy, Drama On Bill.

A well balanced bill at the Majestic gives patrons a rough, he-man prison drama and a rollicking romantic comedy. In the drama, "Each Dawn I Die" are James Cagney and George Raft, the story of a crusading reporter who is framed and sent to prison. "Bridal Suite" brings Annabella (Mrs. Tyrone Power in private life) and Robert Young in a story of a delayed wedding and the wrong bride. Walter Connolly, Reginald Owen, Arthur Treacher and Billie Burke are in the comedy.

* * *

Mother Love Theme.

Barbara Stanwyck has one of her strongest roles as the mother in "Stella Dallas," which the Park offers through Tuesday. John Boles is seen as the man who married beneath him, with Anne Shirley as the daughter of the mis-mated pair. This story of mother love was one of the greatest of silent films. Roy Rogers, one of the current fair haired boys at Republic studio, is starred in "Jeepers Creepers," with the Weaver Brothers and Elviry.

Lexington Mayor Reads Ceremony For Young Couple

Mayor Richard Gore of Lexington performed the ceremony at 2 p. m. Saturday which united in marriage Miss Wahnita Annette Walters, 200 Bowman street, and Alexander Philip Schwaner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Schwaner, 296 Second avenue. The bride wore a pale blue princess style street-length dress, and a corsage of red roses and gardenias.

She was attended by Mrs. Phillip Stirtzinger who wore a black and blue bolero print dress with a corsage of pink roses and gardenias. Ferdinand Schwaner, jr., brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The former Miss Walters was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school, and has been employed at the W. T. Grant company. Mr. Schwaner was also graduated from Mansfield Senior high school, and is an employe of the Humphryes Manufacturing company. Mr. and Mrs. Schwaner are making their home at the Second avenue address for the present.

HOME CEREMONY READ SATURDAY EVENING

Miss Anna Mae Mowry Becomes Bride of Richard J. Darling; Couple Will Be At Home On Chestnut Street This Week.

REV. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Mowry, 38 Parkway drive, at 7:30 p. m. Saturday to read the nuptial ceremony which united in marriage their daughter, Anna Mae, and Richard J. Darling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Darling. The ceremony was read before the fireplace which was banked with palms, ferns and flowers.

The bride was attired in a turquoise blue taffeta floor-length gown made with a basque waist, full skirt, puffed sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. The bustle back added an old-fashioned touch. Miss Mowry wore a shoulder corsage of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Mowry was attired in viking blue, while the bridegroom's mother wore venetian red.

The bride is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, and has been employed at the Mary Hat shop. Mr. Darling is employed at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company. The couple will be at home this week at 35 Chestnut street.

A series of post-nuptial parties are now being arranged for Mrs. Darling by her friends.

Famous Renaissance Cage Team to Appear Here Friday

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)— That charming vagrant, the tennis bum, won't be with us much longer.

* * *

The same tennis officials who made his "remittance man" life possible have suddenly waked up and realized what a wrong they were doing to a group of boys and the sport of tennis.

* * *

Up until this year any younger amateur tennis player with talent could make a living out of the game. A lazy, lousy, listless living, but a living nevertheless. With expense funds from his own association, and what he could wangle in the way of board, lodging and appearance money from clubs holding tournaments, he could just drift about the country all year along.

Winters in Florida, California, Bermuda, Nassau, and almost everywhere else that the sun shines during the cold months. Summers in the east and midwest. Easthampton, Southampton, Rye, Spring Lake, Seabright, Canada, odd spots in Wisconsin, and, for the very good ones, Australia, India, Egypt, and way points.

It was a racket with a racquet.

Many a boy who got good at tennis drifted into this indolent, pleasureable life without realizing what he was doing to himself and to his future.

There was always enough for spending money, and there was not a care for tomorrow. There was always another tournament ahead.

The United States Lawn Tennis association made a show of stamping out this real evil in the sport several years ago. The association passed a rule forbidding any player to travel outside of his home district on expense account for more than eight weeks during a year.

However, this rule was not enforced and many of the boys played not eight weeks, or eight months, but 12 months a year on expense account. But, it would seem, that finally one old tennis father pinched another old tennis father and said:

"Lookit! We've got a rule here that might be a good one if we would only enforce it."

So the association sent out warning that the eight-week rule was really a rule, and to show that they meant it hailed two of the game's star players, Wayne Sabin and Gene Mako, onto the carpet. At last report, Sabin and Mako were still ineligible for sanctioned U. S. L. T. A. tournaments.

If the U. S. L. T. A. doesn't weaken on the enforcement of the rule it will just about finish off the wandering of the tennis bum. He will have to stick pretty close to his home base and save his eight weeks of touring on expense account for the eastern grass court circuit in the summer.

A player must make this tour of the grass court tournaments, which has the national championships at Forest Hills for its climax, if he hopes to gain national standing.

So, bye bye tennis bum. You were entirely charming but not worth a damn.

OHIO CONFERENCE

Cagers Play 47 Games

Ohio Fives, All Beaten, Face Heavy Schedule; State Meets Purdue Tonight.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's 41 college basketball teams, 15 boasting point-a-minute scoring records but all having met defeat, offer a 47-game program this week.

* * *

Two contests are in the western conference, 13 in the Ohio loop, 13 against out-of-state foes on foreign courts, and six on home floors against invaders from five other states.

* * *

Toledo's Rockets, Ohio's No. 1 quintet with 12 wins and one loss, face the week's toughest task, meeting the Marshall's Thundering Herd Monday and Saturday nights.

The Herd, defeated only by Panzer and Saint Francis in 10 starts, has scored 627 points against 412 for opponents, including the University of California and City College of New York.

Ohio State's Bucks, who faltered Saturday against Michigan, 40-35, in opening their western conference crown defense, battle Purdue Monday on the Boilermaker floor, and Illinois at Columbus.

While Buckeye squads have the edge, 55 to 53, in games with out-of-state opponents this season, five of the dozen Ohio teams beaten only once suffered their loss at the hands of foreign foes. Wittenberg and Ohio State have lost seven between them to outsiders.

* * *

Ohio university leads the scoring with an average of 59 points per game eight ahead of the rampaging Toledo team. Miami has the defensive laurels, allowing the opposition but 26 points per game.

* * *

Muskingum, tied with Bowling Green for the Ohio conference leadership with two in a row, plays three conference foes this week while the Bee-Gees play outside th loop, giving the Muskies a chance to take the undisputed top spot.

Here's the week's setup:

Monday: Ohio State at Purdue, Marshall at Toledo, Dayton at Wittenberg, Xavier at Tennessee, Youngstown at St. Lawrence.

These Feminine Stars Perform With Ashland Rifle Club

Mrs. Clarence A. Hassinger of 482 Davey avenue, is shown in the top photo as she prepares to participate in a shoot. Mrs. Hassinger, a member of the Ashland Rifle and Pistol club, gained a membership in the organization last year by shooting a perfect score. In the picture below are the women members of the Ashland team. Back row, left to right, are Mrs. Hoy Miller, Ashland, and Mrs. Foster Groff of Pavonia. In the center is Mrs. William Eichelberger, and in the front row, left to right, are Mrs. Hassinger and Mrs. Carl Coleman.

By CHARLES MARTIN

WHEN the Ashland Rifle club lines up to participate in the North Central Ohio meet at the Ashland armory in February there'll be one woman member who will be a threat to cop some of the top honors.

* * * * *

She is Mrs. Clarence A. Hassinger of 482 Davey avenue, Mansfield, and judging from her past performances in competition since joining the National club at Ashland it's going to take some fancy shooting to eliminate her.

* * * * *

Although Mrs. Hassinger has only been on the Ashland team approximately eleven months, she has become the club's leading woman rifle expert and even threatens to top some of the male members of the group.

Her husband, Clarence, district office manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, who is one of Mansfield's leading rifle and pistol shots, was the principal factor in causing her to take up the sport.

Nearly five years ago Mrs. Hassinger accompanied her husband on practice shoots and her ability to score bullseyes with ease made Clarence coax her into joining the Ashland unit.

And she is modest about her success. "Don't give me any more credit than the rest of the girls of the team," she says. "They are all fine rifle shots."

* * * * *

That Mrs. Hassinger, a former Ashlander, can compete under pressure was demonstrated in the match she performed in to gain her membership in the club. She collected a perfect score on the 50-foot range at Ashland.

* * * * *

Despite the fact that the Ashland team is dominated by men, the five women members of the organization have been the deciding factor in enabling the club to emerge with impressive victories.

The other women members of the club are Mrs. Hoy Miller of Ashland, Mrs. Foster Graff of Pavonia, Mrs. William Eichelberger and Mrs. Carl Coleman of Ashland.

Mrs. Hassinger, a dark-haired beauty, whom you wouldn't suspect of being a deadly rifle shot, can trace some of the knowledge of handling the gun—it's a .22 caliber—to her early life.

At one time she lived on a large dairy farm near Ashland and used a rifle with good results in killing groundhogs.

* * * * *

Incidentally, Mrs. Hassinger has one other favorite sport—horseback riding.

* * * * *

Teams from practically every city in north central Ohio will invade Ashland to battle in the NCO meet. Some 130 rifle and pistol experts will compete in the shoot.

Reds Aren't So Hot If You Add Up Years

Figures Show Cincinnati Has Finished Second Division More Times.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Those Cincinnati Reds, who are riding high, wide, and cocky, at least in their own league, may achieve humility of a sort by reading some cold if obscure figures in the New Year's edition of their house organ.

* * *

Recording the bitter with the sweet, the editors of this slick-paper brochure have spared no fact merely to preserve latter-day glory. And this is the sad truth—for all the years of the National League, the Reds are deep in second division, and they have finished on the lower end far more times than on the upper.

* * *

Since the formation of the league in 1876, the Reds have won 3,412 games and lost 3,695 for an all-time percentage of .480. On 1894, when the loop had 10 clubs, the Reds wound up tenth.

As is well known, they won the pennant twice. As is not so well known, they were second four times, third six, fourth nine, fifth eight, sixth eight, and seventh seven.

* * *

They hold an all-time advantage over only three clubs—the Phillies, whom they beat 522 times against 476 losses; the Dodgers, 543 and 456; and Boston, 519 and 507. Of these only Boston was in the league at the start. The other two came in in 1890.

* * *

Today's team, all hoping for another pennant and, who knows, a world championship, may plead that it can't be responsible for what its predecessors did. Nobody would ask the boys to, but they might remember that there's a long rocky road ahead if Cincinnati is to get its full share of glory out of history.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Promoter Mike Jacobs was trying today to match Fred Apostoli and Melio Bettina for a 15-round return bout at Madison Square Garden, some time next month.

Kudo Pins Victory Hopes On "Arm Strangle" Tonight

KIMAN KUDO, the little bundle of mat dynamite from Japan will place his hopes for a victory over Alex Kasoboski the "Pitiless Pole" in the Armory ring tonight on the deadly Japanese arm strangle.

* * *

Some of the brightest stars of the wrestling firmament have been dragged into the ashes of defeat by this same dreaded grip from which there is no escape once Kudo gets it clamped firmly in place.

* * *

The hold isn't much to look at, but it twists and reverses the muscles in the arm and shoulder and hand until the torture becomes unbearable and the unfortunate victim has to concede a fall to the grim little brown man from the land of the Rising Sun.

Kudo will spot Kasoboski many pounds in weight tonight but that will have little bearing on the outcome of the match for Kudo prefers to wrestle bigger men over whom he thus carries an edge in speed and agility. Much of his jiu jitsu artistry depends on this edge in speed.

* * *

Much of Kasoboski's success will depend upon his ability at roughhouse wrestling. That's how he got his name, the "Pitiless Pole" and he'll likely turn on the heat full force tonight.

* * *

The semi-final will bring here the sensational Chinese Walter "Sneeze" Achiu of Honolulu to meet Bobby Blake in the semi-final with Walter Stratton of Letonia facing "Buzz" Jones of Wyoming. The opening event between local boys is strictly an exhibition match.

MAY BAN "BOWL" GAMES

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The state board of high school athletic control today had deferred until its Feb. 3 meeting proposed action to prohibit further scholastic football "bowl" contests.

Ohio's Rifle and Pistol Clubs Tune Up for Meet.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—More than 5,000 members of Ohio's 220 rifle and pistol clubs began tuning up today for the annual championships events, the first of which is the state indoor rifle shoot Feb. 24-25 at Fort Hayes, Columbus. Indoor pistol titles will be decided at Fort Hayes March 31, while outdoor state championships will be up for decision at the state range near Mansfield in June.

Baseball's Contract-Signing Time Is Here

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK —(AP)— Like a siren of spring, Dizzy Dean's holdout squawk over the week-end aroused slumbering baseball fans to the fact that contract time was here again.

* * *

In the next week or two the documents with the dotted lines will have been mailed to just about every eligible major leaguer, but the chant of "Ole Diz" isn't likely to get much of a chorus.

* * *

For one thing a lot of players, including several perennial members of the "beef trust," already are signed.

Championship clubs are popularly supposed to face the most trouble rounding their players into line but the Cincinnati Reds at this [illegible] got their contract for 1940 and the New York Yankees, who won't put their papers into the mail till next week, aren't experiencing much fuss. That World Series bonus every year seems to keep the Bronx Bombers happy.

The first of the Reds to sign up was Third Baseman Bill Werber, who has a pretty practical opinion of his own value, and one of the first was Paul Derringer, the big pitcher who used to be quarrelsome about his figures.

Pitcher Bucky Walters, the National league's most valuable player, and First Baseman Frank McCormick slapped their names on two-year contracts without the slightest hesitation.

Paul Waner, the Pittsburgh Pirates' persistent holdout, jumped to teams last November. This action wasn't because Waner had no talking point, for he batted .328 last year and ranked fourth in the National league.

The Cleveland Indians have Bob Feller, Mel Harder and Jeff Heath signed and sealed—and they were about the only three that might have been expected to give the Tribe trouble. Feller was reported to have been given $25,000. Whatever it was caused President Alva Bradley to remark he didn't know whether "we signed Feller or he signed us."

* * *

The Boston Red Sox gave Joe Cronin another five year player-manager contract last September and followed up this coup by signing Ted Williams, Jimmie Foxx, Bob Doerr and Jim Tabor, four better than fair faces, for the 1940 campaign.

* * *

The Detroit Tigers already have Charley Gehringer and the New York Giants Carl Hubbell as bell wethers for their flocks.

SPORTS GOSSIP

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK —(AP)— News and Views: Red Dutton, coach of the New York Americans, calls for rival New York Rangers the greatest hickey team he ever saw in action. . . . If Joey Archibald and Jimmy Perrin are signed for a featherweight title bout in New Orleans, the N. B. A. will not recognize the match as such. . . . Look out! There are 15 former high school captains on the Indiana basketball squad. . . . Still the question: Where will Doc Sutherland?

Selected Shorts: We can't join in the mourning for Coach Lew Andreas and his Syracuse basketball team—all he's got to do is wait till next year. . . . Jack Kearns wants to have Burman vs. Pastor shifted from Miami to Detroit where he would use his old tie-up with Jack Dempsey for publicity purposes. . . . When Jimmy Londos appeared in Boston recently, Promoter Paul Bowser was mean enough to advertise Jimmy's age as 48, which ain't fair if it is almost right.

Meet City Stars

New York Colored Team Invades Senior High Gym; Opposes League Quintet.

THE Renaissance Colored basketball team of New York City, professional world champions, will provide the next test for the City League All Stars in Mansfield Senior high school gymnasium, Friday night, at 9:15.

The Renaissance, who have won 196 out of their last 200 games, won the $10,000 professional basketball championship tournament conducted in Chicago last spring. Playing against the greatest pro clubs in the nation they did not come close to losing a game.

* * *

Such noted teams as the Firestones of Akron, New York Celtics, Waterloo Wonders, etc., have failed on numerous occasions to even give these colored wizards a run for their money. Their passing is so deceptive that for seconds at a time the spectators do not even know where the ball is.

It would be asking too much to expect the local stars to win over the Rens, yet those fans who sat in on the New York Celtic upset are sure the Mansfield sharpshooters will give the Rens, unquestionably the greatest quintet in the country, a battle.

Heading the Rens is "Tarzan" Cooper, the world's best basketball player, according to all opponents. Standing 6 feet 4 inches in his stocking feet, "Tarzan" looks like one of the Jungle men depicted in the Tarzan movies.

No player has been known to outplay Cooper since he joined the Rens. Another great Ren star is center "Wee Willie" Smith, 6 foot 6 inch Cleveland boy, who is a high scorer and a powerhouse on defense.

Teaming with Cooper at the guards are Puggy Bell and Zack Clayton. At forward are Eyre "Bruiser" Saitch, William Gates, leading pro scorer of America, and John Isaacs.

* * *

While individually the Rens are all class, it is as a unit that they show to the best advantage. Their passing is marvelous to behold and once they gain possession of the ball, they seldom lose it until they get a shot at the basket.

If the All Stars can even make a presentable showing against this super-team, they will deserve a world of credit.

* * *

The All Stars' win over the Celtics boosted their stock locally and chances are Mansfield high gym will be packed when the teams tee off Friday night.

Heafner Still Pacing Field In Tourney

Shoots 73 in Rain to Hold Two-Stroke Lead in Los Angeles Open.

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)— They were calling Clayton Heafner "a mudder" today as the field chased the blond North Carolina professional over the final 18-holes in the $5,000 Los Angeles open golf championship.

* * *

The field, reduced to 66 at the 54-hole mark, saw Heafner streak home through a driving rain storm yesterday with a 73 for a 212 total that gave him a two stroke margin over his nearest challenger, Johnny Dawson, Hollywood amateur.

* * *

Behind Dawson were Ben Hogan, White Plains, N. Y., Al Kreuger, Beloit, Wis., and Mark Fry, Oakland, Calif., with 215's. Dutch Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., was in a sixth place tie with Olin Dutra, Los Angeles, at 216.

Others in the running included Lawson Little, Bretton Woods, N. H., 217; Tony Penna, Dayton, O., and Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., and Jimmy Thomson, Chicopee, Mass., 218.

FINNS WIPE OUT SOVIET DIVISION, CAPUTRE 1,000

Claim Armed Force of 15,000 to 17,000 Men Crushed by Finnish Troops.

said that in the Salla sector of the central eastern front "an attempt by an enemy ski detachment to outflank our troops was defeated.

"The bodies of more than 300 enemy dead remained on the field, together with 14 machine-guns and other material."

(A Finnish patrol was reported to have come upon a Russian outpost, protected by barbed-wire in the drifted snow. The Finns were amazed at the silence of their enemy's guns as the patrol inched closer. The Finns, it was said, finally closed in on the silent outpost and found the entire force, 150 men, frozen to death.)

Military experts expressed belief the Finns and their ally, the weather, had forced the Russian command to revamp its entire winter campaign plan.

The Finnish communique said that in the main theater of the war, the Karelian isthmus, "the enemy has begun digging in and setting up barbed wire entanglements to strengthen its positions."

If the weather and the present power of the Finns to resist mean a waiting war, it is likely a major drive will not come until March, or April

The Russian air force has been raiding despite the weather, but not on such scale as early in the war when 350 planes were reported over Finland on a single day. The Finns reported shooting down 12 planes on Saturday alone.

Britons Demanding Parliament Recall.

LONDON—(U P)—A demand for the immediate recall of parliament to hear Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain explain why Leslie Hore-Belisha was dismissed as war secretary was being considered by Laborite leaders today.

Parliament was scheduled to meet on Jan. 16 but labor leaders and trades union chiefs were being swamped with inquiries from their followers for an explanation of Hore-Belisha's dismissal. There were demands that labor take a strong stand if it appeared that Hore-Belisha had been "unjustly sacrificed."

Embarrassment caused to British expeditionary force chieftains in France by the commissioning of the Duke of Windsor as a major general may have been one factor in the forced resignation of Leslie Hore-Belisha as war minister, it was reported today.

There was no confirmation of the report or, for that matter, of the alleged embarrassment.

Some surprise was noted when the former king was given a high commission in the army in the field, and stories had been noted that he had worn suede shoes with his army uniform on occasion. The Duke was able to get "home" for Christmas—to Paris, where the Duchess resides, whereas under the army tradition few wifes get to France in war time.

Bewilderment — and anger — over the forced resignation of Hore-Belisha seemed increasing, and there were indications that this first big national political sensation of the war would not soon be forgotten.

Hore-Belisha, at his 17th century home in the London suburbs, did nothing to abate speculation when he told newspapermen: "This is very big—much bigger than you imagine."

There was another repercussion today of the cabinet shakeup by which Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain eliminated Hore-Belisha and Lord McMillan, minister of the much-attacked ministry of information, from his cabinet.

SAYS CITY LIFE BEST FOR DOGS

Vet Declares Town Pups Live Better and Get More Attention.

(By International News Service)

MEMPHIS, Tenn.,—Attention, all dog lovers and owners! If you have a dog you are especially fond of, move to the city with it—for, in the opinion of Dr C. P Zepp, of New York, it will live longer.

"Dogs adapt themselves to the human mode of living," Dr Zepp said in giving advice to dog owners. "They survive longer in the companionship of man In the city the dog lives in an apartment.

In the country it probably lives in the woodshed. City dogs are fed with greater care, and are generally restrained from hazards of autos, snakes, woodchucks and other dangers. The city dog lives under better hygienic conditions and gets better food and medical care."

Should your pet canine be run over or hurt badly "don't rush up to him, grab him up and carry him off roughly," Dr. Zepp warned. "Treat the dog tenderly, look for severe bleeding (to be stopped with a tourniquet), and try to quiet him, since in his excitement he may bite you."

Don't be too hasty about having a badly injured dog killed, as a good veterinarian may be able to save it," Dr. Zepp said.

"Don't confuse fits with rabies—fits start suddenly; rabies does not," the veterinarian continued. "Keeping a dog out of the summer heat will help him from having hysterical fits."

The eterinarian said only about 25 per cent of dog skin disease was mange. Most skin ailments in summer are due to heat and dry air, he said, stating use of olive oil on the pet's skin was a good remedy.

LABOR POSES NEW PROBLEM

'40 Auto Production Depends to Certain Extent on Unions' Attitude.

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT—The men who make motors long ago came to the conclusion that they could not forecast car output more than three months in advance and they have not changed this view despite the highly satisfactory production year just ended.

Generally the car makers know there will be need for 4,000,000 passenger cars and trucks during the coming 12 months, a gain of more than 10 per cent over 1939's 3,725,000 Neither the manufacturers nor the industry's most authoritative observers, however, will venture the flat prediction that the assembly lines will roll off that many units during 1940.

The reason is that once more labor presents a huge question mark just as it did at the outset of the last three years.

Whether either side gained anything in the agreement that ended the recent dispute between the United Automobile Workers of America and the Chrysler Corporation which tied up car production for 54 days, still is being debated, but that controversy barely had been settled before rumors spread of plans for union demands in other sections of the motor industry that might bring further interruption to car production.

There probably will be two periods of seasonal slackening in car distribution—one in mid-February and another when work on present models is concluded—but appraised at long range these periods will be of brief duration and over the 12-month period the industry will not fully overtake consumer demand.

To make up a demand for an approximately normal volume of cars and trucks during the coming year there is an accumulation of unsatisfied requirements carried over from 1939 and a need for replacement that easily will total 4,000,000 units.

AVERAGE FRESHMAN IN COLLEGE YOUNGER, HEAVIER, TALLER NOW

(By International News Service)

FULTON, Mo.—A survey of freshmen enrolling in three middle western colleges during a 20 year period disclosed that the average college freshman enrolling today is younger, taller and heavier than the freshman who enrolled twenty years ago.

The survey was made by Paul Herriott, jr., a senior at Westminster college here. He based his study on enrollment statistics covering 50,000 men over a 20-year period at Westminster, the University of Illinois and the University of Cincinnati. Herriott also found that the Westminster freshman is younger, but heavier and taller, on the average, than those at the other two schools.

The schools selected for the survey, in Herriott's opinion, are typical of three types of midwestern educational institutions. Westminster is a private men's college, Illinois is a state university, and Cincinnati is a municipal university. Most of the students, Herriott found, were native born and of nativeborn parents.

The freshman enrolling today at all the three schools is a year younger, about three inches taller, and eight to ten pounds heavier than the freshmen of 1919, Herriot found.

The composite Westminster freshman, judging from an average of the 20 year period, is 18.54 years old, 69.68 inches in height, and weighs 145 11 pounds. The Cincinnati freshman is 19 14 years old, 68.34 inches in height, and weight 137.83 pounds, while the Illini first-year student is 18.69 years old, 67.51 inches in height and weighs 140 29 pounds.

HOUSE-SENATE BUDGET CHECK FACES DELAY

Early Defeat or Postponement Looms for Proposed 60-Day Study of Spending.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The house voted today to take up the federal anti-lynching bill. The vote, discharging the judiciary and rules committees from passing on the bill, indicated it will be passed by the house, probably on Wednesday.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Delay or defeat in the senate today threatened the Harrison proposal for a joint house-senate sixty day study of President Roosevelt's $8,424,000,000 budget program.

Nevertheless the author, senate finance committee Chairman Harrison (D.) Mississippi, moved to bring a showdown. Harrison embodied his plan in a concurrent resolution and announced he would seek immediate action on the measure when the senate convened at noon.

As drafted, the resolution called for creation of a joint committee composed of six members each from appropriatingand taxing committees of the senate and house, respectively. This joint committee, under the resolution, would hold hearings and study the proposed economies, expenditures and taxes of the budget, reporting its own recommendations back to congress within a miximum of sixty days.

Senate Democratic leaders were not enthusiastic over the proposition, despite Harrison's claim, after a White House conference, that President Roosevelt approved the idea. Only unanimous consent of the senate would permit an immediate vote on the proposal. A number of influential Democrats asserted the resolution should at least go through the usual channels of committee examination and report before a senate vote.

Republicans have already recorded themselves formally in favor of the Harrison plan, but the pressure of Democratic leadership opposition in the senate was heavy, and the resolution was given only a slight chance for immediate adoption.

Tops Conflicts.

The Harrison resolution fight topped a multitude of conflicts facing the week-old congress.

In the house the Gavagan anti-lynching bill was the order of the day, with a fiery six hours of debate on this measure ahead before its predicted passage probably on Wednesday. When this is out of the way and on its road to bitter opposition in the senate, the house will take up the deficiency bill to pay for increased military activities ordered by the president after the outbreak of the war in Europe.

Pennsy Trooper Faces Jury In Slaying Schoolgirl, 14.

Franklin, 33-year-old, six-foot, 200-pounder, is accused of pumping eight bullets into the frail, 90-pound body of Joan Stevens the night of last June 5 as the two sat with Private Edward Swatji in an automobile on a deserted street in Joan's home town of nearby Nesquehoning.

The trooper said he fired in self defense because the girl pulled a gun and shouted she'd "blow your brains out."

HORSE DUMPS COAL

BRISTOL, R. I. —(U.P.)— Several householders received "free coal," thanks to a skittish horse. Drawing a load of coal, the horse shied at an automobile. The runaway wagon struck several houses, sprinkling coal over the lawns, sideswiped a parked automobile and finally came to halt against a tree.

GLASSES PRICED AT $2,000

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— A pair of sun-glasses reported to be the most expensive set ever made, are set with small diamonds around the rims and with a two-carat square-cut diamond in the center. The price was $2,000.

GOOD SURGEONS CUT DEATH TOLL

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— Better trained surgeons and more careful treatment of the patient have resulted in less deaths due to operations in the past 20 years, according to Dr Malcolm T. MacEachern, associate director of the American College of Surgeons.

Advances in anesthesia and more efficient methods of building up persons about to undergo operations have also contributed to bringing the death rate from 12 to three per cent, Dr. MacEachern asserted.

HIGHER PRICES RULE SELECTED STOCKS TODAY

U. S. Steel and Sears Roebuck Among Leaders; European Securities Mixed.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Slightly higher prices ruled for selected stocks in today's market.

Up a shade at one time or another were U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, Kennecott, Westinghouse and American can.

Bonds did better in spots. Commodities were mixed, as were the principal European securities markets.

There was little change in the fairly cheerful business picture.

Market analysts saw an encouraging indicator in the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that, while some effects of annual inventory taking are in evidence, specifications still were in good volume and producers were scheduling activities high in an effort to meet consumer needs.

Helpful were reports from the retail field that store executives, optimistic over early spring sales prospects, recently had been increasing forward orders for merchandise.

Bevis, who is registered as a Democrat, was reported highly acceptable to Gov. John W. Bricker. The men long have been personal friends.

Demand Probe In Bizarre Plot to Blow Up Boulder Dam

LAWMAKERS TO SEEK ACTION BY CONGRESS

Request Full Details From State Department on Plan to Destroy Project.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A full congressional investigation into a bizarre international plot to wreck Boulder Dam—$126,000,000 pride of the United States power system—was demanded today by two California members of congress.

The plot, as disclosed to International News Service, was conceived by a ring of international saboteurs, believed to be Communist-inspired. State department authorities uncovered the scheme in an unnamed foreign capital, and notified other government agencies.

Reps. Henshaw (R.) of Pasadena and Kramer (D.) of Los Angeles joined in announcing they would immediately demand that the state department make public the details of the plot, to congress or to a special congressional committee.

Kramer said he would introduce a resolution in the house calling for a public inquiry of the case, most spectacular instance of plotted sabotage to confront the nation since beginning of the European war. Hinshaw declared he will concur in this resolution.

Take Extra Precautions.

Reclamation Commissioner John C. Page confirmed the fact unusual precautionary measures have recently been taken to safeguard the dam, tallest such structure in the world.

Page admitted the 40 acres housing the dam's equipment are still vulnerable to attack in several places. He declared the present force of guides and rangers cannot undertake to adequately patrol Lake Mead, 115 miles long and as much as eight miles wide.

Reasons motivating the plot were a closely guarded state secret, as were details of the destruction method. Time devices, it was learned, were to be built into the floating mines, which, after their discharge from small boats on the lake, under cover of darkness, were to be carried into vital apertures of the intake towers by the swift sub-surface current.

U. S. Sees Planes Carry Bombs To Europe, Return

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Aeronautical engineers forecast today American airplanes capable of flying to Europe with a full load of bombs, or passengers and cargo, and returning non-stop if necessary.

This probability, expected to become a reality in the next year or 18 months, grew out of two technical reports to congress by the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

Two apparently simple changes in wing design, and the "finning" of airplane engine cylinders promise to increase vastly the range, speed, payload and efficiency of airplanes which already are being designed.

The committee's engineers in the laboratories at Langley Field, Va., regard the present airplanes as lumbering trucks, however, compared with the planes which will be "coming out of the jigs" in a year or so.

The new streamlined wing will cut through the air with only one-third the resistance, or "drag," of present wing designs, permitting speeds of 450 to 500 miles an hour. It still is a closely-guarded military secret.

Hits Bricker's Charge of Politics In WPA

Up and Down THE STREET

Last night's snowfall and the slippery streets caused Clerk of Courts Fred R. Zellner to reminisce today about the days when sleigh races on Park avenue east attracted thousands of spectators on winter afternoons. That was before the subway was built and Park avenue was roped off from Hedges street to the Pennsylvania tracks to provide a "race track," Zellner said. The county's best horses, drawing decorated sleighs, competed for prizes. And there were no automobiles to interrupt proceedings or "spoil" the race track, he added.

Mopping up the floor at the Y. M. C. A. is a routine job, but it assumed major proportions today. There was such a crowd at the Y Saturday (one of the largest single day attendances in recent years) and they tracked in so much snow and sleet, that it became necessary to close the main entrance today to permit the janitorial staff to do its stuff. While the clean-up was in progress, Monday morning activity participants and officers used a side entrance.

Who says that schoolboys today haven't ambition and initiative? Gene Flood, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Flood, and Jimmie Gardner, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Gardner, get up at 4 a. m. every morning to drive eight miles into the country and "run traps." The boys are earning money by trapping and so far this season have sold 30 muskrat skins. They set their alarm clocks, get up quietly so as not to disturb their families, drive to the Gardner farm southeast of here and run traps for an hour. They're usually back home by 6 and get to bed until time to get up for school. On Saturday and Sunday mornings they cook their own breakfasts in a shack on the farm, with pancakes, bacon and eggs and coffee on the menu.

A group of south side boys went back to school today well equipped with spending money as the result of a vacation pastime which paid them well. For several days they checked the backyards of homes in the neighborhood to spot Christmas trees immediately after they were thrown out. Then to Mrs. Housewife they would say, "we'll haul your Christmas tree away for five cents," and in most cases their offers were snatched up.

DIES OF WOUNDS IN GUN BATTLE

Telegraph Agent Succumbs After Shooting Robber in Cleveland Office.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND—Wounded twice in the chest when he shot it out with a robber who tried to hold up the main office of the Western Union Telegraph company, Theodore Nichols, 34, an American district telegraph agent of West Ridgefield, near Akron, died early today in Charity hospital.

Nichols was shot as he entered the door of the telegraph company, which is a few doors from the city's main intersection, by the holdup man, who gave his name to City hospital attendants as Robert McCormack, 21, of Pittsburgh. His condition was critical.

McCormick is a University of Pittsburgh student.

Nichols returned McCormack's fire and shot him in the chest and right arm. Hurdling Nichols' body, the holdup man ran out the door and was captured a few blocks away when police fired several shots at him in a parking lot. McCormack had $75 on him.

Police said he admitted both the shooting and the holdup attempt. They said he entered the telegraph office shortly after midnight and after waiting for two customers to leave ordered Ernest J. Pfeiffer, assistant manager, to open the safe.

While Pfeiffer went to the safe Abe Lottofsky, 38, the night manager, turned in the A. D. T. alarm which brought Nichols to the office.

THOUGHT SON WAS HOME

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Parents of John McCormick, University of Pittsburgh senior held in the fatal shooting of a telegraph guard in Cleveland, told police today they had believed their son was in bed at the time the shooting occurred.

OHIO CHILD BRIDE, 10, STARTS LIFE IN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

(By Associated Press)

ATHENS — Ten-year-old Mary Alice Limberg, whose four-day marriage to a young coal miner was ordered annulled, clung today to a Bible her husband gave her for Christmas as she packed for a trip to the Ohio Girls' Industrial school near Delaware.

The child insisted that she would spend her years in the school studying to be a better wife to Charles Schall, 21, when they remarry.

Schall, starting a one-year term in the Nelsonville jail, promised to "wait" for the girl from whom he was separated in a courtroom Saturday.

Mary Alice's step-father, Donald Hudnall, filed delinquency charges against his wife, who falsified her daughter's age in a marriage license application, and the newlyweds.

The child was committed to the Industrial school, Mrs. Hudnall was sentenced to a year in the Women's Reformatory at Marysville, and Schall was sent to jail.

"I can make good bread now, but I want to learn to make cake and pie," brown-eyed Mary Alice commented as she spoke of remarriage to Schall, whom she met a year ago at church.

Remarriage plans were indefinitely postponed, however, since Mary Alice will remain the ward of the state until she reaches 21 years of ago. Her confinement to the state school may be terminated at the discretion of the state welfare department but she will be subject to state supervision until her final release.

Mrs. Hudnall, who was expected to be transferred from the Nelsonville jail to the Women's reformatory today, insisted she saw nothing wrong with the marriage. She gave her daughter's age as 16 in applying for the marriage license.

"She's almost as big as I am," she said of her fire-foot-two daughter.

COMMISSIONER DENIES FEDERAL 'MANIPULATION'

Declares Governor's Remarks About Cleveland Situation 'Completely Untrue.'

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Howard O. Hunter, deputy WPA commissioner, in an exchange of correspondence with Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio made public today, denied Bricker's charge that WPA programs were manipulated in Ohio for political considerations.

"Any charge that the employment on WPA in Ohio was in the slightest degree manipulated for political considerations is completely untrue," Hunter wrote.

He explained that in 1938 he was regional director of the WPA in the middlewest and had "full and complete responsibility for establishing employment quotas for those states."

The governor had charged "political manipulation" against WPA in his December 17 speech before the Ohio society of New York defending the state's relief policies in relation to the Cleveland relief.

Bricker had written Hunter demanding "a definite statement as to what the incorrect statements by me were." Hunter had charged the governor with inaccuracies in his New York speech.

Cites Sharp Slash.

The governor had charged that WPA rolls in Cleveland were boosted in the election year of 1938 but that they were cut sharply in 1939; that the average reduction for the nation in 1939 was 43.9 per cent against a 53.6 percent cut for Ohio.

He declared that political considerations governed these flucuations.

Hunter defended the 1938 additions to the WPA rolls on these grounds:

1. That evidence of need was presented to the WPA by the Republican mayor of Cleveland, Harold H. Burton and the Republican city council.

2. That every person employed by the WPA during the industrial recession was certified by a Republican-controlled relief administration in Cleveland.

3. That "without exception the Democratic candidates for congress from Cleveland the Democratic candidate for United States senator (Robert J. Bulkley) complained that Republicans in Cleveland were using WPA for political advantage."

FAIR ENOUGH!

Green Should Clean House Before Asking Probe of Merits of Union Groups

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor has asked that congress interrogate Miss Frances Perkins on the merits of the fight between his organization and the CIO. To that proposal I would add one that the same committee examine Mr. Green regarding some vicious conditions in the A. F. of L. When I speak of vicious conditions I am not applying a harsh word to harmless and unimportant irregularities.

I mean vicious conditions in which gangsters with criminal records and other racketeers who would have criminal records if the police and prosecutors had been honest and efficient, control the affairs of unions and rob and terrorize vast numbers of working citizens without effective interference by Mr. Green.

* * *

To the extent that he persistently declines or neglects to interfere Mr. Green is himself a party to a state of affairs which is not only a disgrace to his organization but a much worse menace to organized labor than all the Girdlers and the Communists together. He seems to believe that by denouncing the Communists he can obscure or justify the notorious incompetence or guilt of the national leadership and management of the A. F. of L., when the fact that he is fooling nobody, least of all the rank and file members who live under the terror and are preyed upon by some of the most loathsome thieves that ever robbed a widow of her husband's death benefits.

* * *

Mr. Green has imposed too long and too heavily on the fake plea that the autonomous rights of the component unions of the A. F. of L. prevent the national leadership from interfering.

The national leadership interferes quickly when these unions become politically obstreperous and threaten the jobs and the soft living of the high executives.

But it makes no difference what excuse he may find in the constitution of the American Federation of Labor. If that constitution doesn't permit the national high command to clean out the rodent underworld characters who infest his organization, then it is up to the Federation to revise its constitution and elect some officials who are willing and able to give a decent administration.

* * *

Green needs reminding that the A. F. of L. is no sacred cow. It has its powers and privileges, but it also has its responsibilities to the membership and to the whole American public. The nation doesn't have to take anything from the A. F. of L., and the cry of "labor baiting" has been raised too often to discredit or silence legitimate protest against the most atrocious indecencies. In one notorious case, a picket line has been maintained so long that it is now a landmark, because a business man refused to permit a union official in his private capacity to dirty up the good reputation of his house with an assignation. Rank and file union members are freely and wantonly used by union executives for purposes of extortion, and only last summer a hoodlum union attempted to take over a great and prosperous union without the slightest pretense of consulting the members and without any interference by Mr. Green.

* * *

A roster of the officials of A. F. or L. unions presents a number of candidates for a rogue's gallery, and if Mr. Green wants names and facts he can get them from the police of Chicago, Los Angeles, New York and St. Louis. I can give him some honeys myself.

The best thing Mr. Green can do for labor is to clean up his own show or get out and let someone else do it. And he needn't think that by quibbling over the question whether he "claims" or "reports" 4,000,000 members he can divert attention from the vicious conditions which thrive under his presidency.

* * *

If he or someone else doesn't clean up the A. F. of L. the government will have to do it in response to great popular demand, including the demand of the rank and file. Government control of labor is Fascism or Stalinism, but if Labor's own government can't meet its responsibilities, then the public government will have to protect the public from extortion, persecution, robbery, assault and murder by criminal unioneers.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

By LEON GORDON

(The playwright and screen writer muses on the Quirks of Fate—for vacationing Robbin Coons.)

HOLLYWOOD—On my way back to New York from the South Seas, I dropped off in Hollywood for one day to see the studios. I never finished that tour because at the very first studio I ran into a number of people I'd known on Broadway. So I deserted my guide and before leaving the lot had agreed to return next day to write "Good Gracious, Annabelle," Jeanette MacDonald's first non-singing film. I still don't know what they've inside of some of the studious look like.

Accidents like this, little quirks of fate, have marked the careers of almost everyone in Hollywood.

Two of our finest directors are Frank Lloyd and Robert Z. Leonard. Lloyd was a leading man 20 years ago when Leonard arrived. Lloyd looked at Leonard, said "I can't compete with his looks" and quit to become a director.

Ten years ago Donald Crisp was a director and William Dieterle was a player. Today Crisp is a player in pictures that Dieterle directs.

* * *

NINE years ago Bing Crosby was singing "I Surrender, Dear" at the Cocoanut Grove. Lupe Velez was singing "Cielito Lindo" at the Music Box, and Jack Oakie was just singing on the corner of Hollywood and Vine. Brian Aherne got his first stage experience in the London company of my play "White Cargo" and the billboards shrieked "Garbo Talks."

It was eight years ago that Ginger Rogers was making mystery films, and both Myrna Loy and William Powell were playing "heavies." Lew Ayres was turned down as a guitarist because he couldn't double on the violin. The job went to Russ Columbo. Ayres got a job at the Montmarte, which was later managed by Jacques deBujac, now Bruce Cabot.

Only seven years ago Marlene Dietrich came here from Europe and Tom Mix was making "Destry Rides Again." Now Marlene has made "Destry Rides Again" and Tom Mix has just returned from Europe. All the stars were moving to Malibu.

* * *

FOUR years ago Robert Taylor arrived from Pomona college and Errol Flynn arrived from Pago Pago. Gloria Stuart's understudy took Gilmas role in "Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Bowl—Olivia DeHavilland. The stars were moving to Bel-Air. The billboards said "Garbo Smiles."

It was three years ago that Selznick started on "Gone With the Wind" and Warners began "Zola."

Two years ago in London I saw "Balailaika" at Her Majesty's Theater. That same evening I was introduced to a beautiful young Hungarian actress who was on her way to Hollywood—Ilona Massey. Now Miss Massey is the sensation of the screen's "Balailaika" which I adapted from the stage play. The stars were building homes in Palm Springs.

Last year at this time my former theatrical partner, Earl Carroll, opened his spectacular night club in Hollywood. Everyone said it wouldn't last a month. A visitor looked at Ann Sheridan and said "Oomph!"

This year the stars are going to Arrowhead Springs. "Gone With the Wind" is released and the billboards say "Garbo Laughs."

BURIAL HERE

LEXINGTON—Funeral services for Mrs. Jeanetta Woods, 63, who died at her home Saturday after an illness of pneumonia, will be held at the residence at 2 p. m. Tuesday. Rev. Max Wertheimer of Ada, O., will officiate, assisted by Rev. S. R. Parrett of Mansfield. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

Woods, survives, in addition to four sisters, Mrs. Rose Kell, Lexington; Mrs. Fannie Snyder, Johnsville, Mrs. Anna Stough, Massillon, Mrs. Nora Summer, Akron, and three brothers, Walter and Glenn Oberlin of Toledo, and Ray Oberlin, Mansfield.

Britain Starts War-Time Rationing of Food Supplies

LIKE OTHERS, CARDS ISSUED TO KING, QUEEN

Britons Allowed 4 Ounces of Butter, 12 Ounces of Sugar for Week's Quota.

(By United Press)

LONDON —(U.P.)— Forty-seven million Britons including King George and Queen Elizabeth went on war time rations today as regards butter, sugar, ham and bacon.

Government control will be imposed on the purchase, slaughter and distribution of meat next week as a preliminary to meat rationing probably this month.

Under the war time ration plan which became effective at midnight each person in Great Britain may buy four ounces of butter, 12 ounces of sugar and four ounces of bacon and ham a week

King George and Queen Elizabeth will use "travelers' " ration cards so that they can get their allowances at Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle outside London, or Sandringham, their private estate in Norfolk. They are identical with the cards issued to traveling salesmen.

Rationing was the fourth momentous measure in Britain's mobilization and conservation of its man power and resources. The others were the national air raid blackout, evacuation of women and children from air raid tarlet areas, and conscription.

It was insisted officially that the German submarine and mine campaign had nothing to do with the imposition of rationing, and it was pointed out that limitation of food consumption was envisaged before the war started.

It was a conservation measure such as other countries belligerents and neutrals alike, had taken and were preparing to take for the duration of a war in which the husbanding of every ounce of potential energy was regarded as a war winning necessity.

Police Drag Among River Floes For Two Bodies.

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Police, dodging ice floes, dragged the freezing waters of the Ohio river today for the bodies of two of three schoolboys who were drowned during a dangerous game of "dare" on the ice.

One of the trio, Clyde Slofer, 10, colored, died shortly after he was hauled from the river yesterday. The other two lads who went down were Paul Spirko, 10, whose mother thought he was "safe at the movies," and John Usher, 11.

ITALY, HUNGARY MAP ALLIANCE

Budapest Report Says Both Nations Will Unite Should Reds or Nazis Invade.

(In Rome the authoritative fascist writer Virginio Gayda denied that any formal agreements had been reached in the Venice talks, but high fascists said Italy would support Hungarian territorial ambitions in return for aid in checking Russia in the Balkans.)

Yugoslavia, lying between Italy and Hungary, was understood to be unwilling to join any outright alliance with her two neighbors. It was reported, however, that she would join in a triple friendship pact which presumably would permit Italy to move troops through her territory in going to Hungary's aid if that became necessary.

The reported decision of the Hungarian and Italian foreign ministers to recommend an alliance to their governments was said to have been reached not only because of fear that Russia might strike against a southeastern neighbor but also because of disturbing advices from Germany.

These reports, which high sources said played an important role in the Venice talks, were that Nazi leaders, disgruntled with Rumanian refusal to send greater food supplies to Germany, were strongly considering marching through Hungary to Rumania.

Another reason for such a move was said to be Germany's fear that Britain, France and Turkey were planning to create an eastern front and that Germany must find good defensive frontiers deep in the Balkins quickly.

These reports were without confirmation.

CLAIMS OKAYED

Farmers Paid $993 for Sheep Losses in Last Quarter.

Claims totaling $993 for sheep killed by dogs in Richland county during the last quarter of 1939 had been approved today by the county commissioners.

Sheep losses for the final three months of the year were almost double those of the preceding three months, the figures showed and brought the total losses for the year to $2,186.

The largest claim submitted to the commissioners in the final quarter was for $145, covering the loss of sheep owned by C. O. Robinson, Madison township. Thirty-five county farmers reported sheep killed during the three-month period.

Only $184 was paid in claims in the first three months of 1939, the commissioners' records showed. In the second quarter claims totaled $460 and in the third quarter, $550.

Commissioners pay for the losses from funds collected from the sale of dog tags.

AGED RESIDENTS OF LUCAS DEAD

Mrs. Mary S. Trease and Mrs. Rachel Gladden Stricken Over Week-End.

LUCAS—Differing in ages by only four days, two well known Monroe township octogenarians, Mrs. Rachel Gladden and Mrs. Mary S. Trease, died at their homes within a few hours of each other Saturday night and Sunday morning.

Mrs. Gladden died at the family home four miles east of Lucas late Saturday night as the result of a stroke of paralysis which she suffered last Wednesday. She was aged 82 years and 22 days.

Mrs. Trease died at the home of her daughter, Mrs A. E. Cross, in Lucas early Sunday morning after a brief illness. She was aged 82 years and 26 days.

A native of eastern Richland county, Mrs. Gladden was a daughter of Samuel and Drusilla (Hull) Snyder. She was born Dec. 10, 1857.

Following her marriage to L. O. Gladden, whose death occurred several years ago, the family home was made in Monroe township on a farm now occupied by a son, Solomon.

She had almost completely recovered from the effects of a broken hip, which she suffered in a fall several months ago, when she was stricken.

Surviving are two sons, Solomon, and John of Bellville; and a daughter, Mrs. Viola Cubiac of Detroit. Five grandchildren and two great grandchildren also survive.

The body is at the Byerly funeral home in Lucas where friends may call.

Funeral services for Mrs. Gladden will be held from the Byerly funeral home in Lucas at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday with Rev. Lena Jennings, pastor of the Perrysville Presbyterian church, officiating. Burial will be made in the Greenlawn cemetery at Perrysville.

Mrs. Trease, a daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Shelly) Weltmer, was born near Widowsville on Dec. 14, 1857.

Since the death of her husband, Jesse Trease, which occurred several years ago, she had resided in the homes of her children.

Included among the survivors are a son, Claude Rosen of Loudonville; four daughters, Mrs. A. E. Cross and Mrs. John Flenner of Lucas, Mrs. Martha Sprague of near Hastings, and Mrs. Allen Barrett of Mansfield.

She is also survived by two brothers, Monroe Weltmer of Widowsville, and William Weltmer of Steam Boat Springs, Col.; and by three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Selby of Seattle, Wash., Mrs. Ida Pinski of Hayesville, and Mrs. Rebecca Kyle of Widowsville.

GERMANS HALT WAR SHIPPING THROUGH REICH

Decision Ends Italian Aid to Finns; Planes En Route Ordered Returned.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN — The German government definitely decided today to halt all trans-shipment of war supplies to belligerent countries through the reich, with obvious emphasis on the case of Finland.

The decision ended all Italian aid to beleaguered Finland and a number of Italian bombing planes now at Sassnitz on the Baltic sea will be turned back to Italy.

In the past, several squadrons of Italian planes had been flown to Sassnitz and thence to Helsinki.

The action was taken, an announcement said, in friendly agreement with Italy. International law was cited to show that a "neutral" power has the right to refuse trans-shipments to a third power. The reich is holding to a policy of strict neutrality in the Russo-Finnish war.

It was believed that the Soviet government had informally called Germany's attention to the fact that Italy was utilizing reich territory as a base for shipment of war materials to Finland.

Meanwhile, the German government persisted in its firm denials of any plans to launch a new "peace offensive" in the war against Britain and France.

In this connection, it was stated that unless unforseen circumstances occurr, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler will not convoke the reichstag on January 30, as is usual on the anniversary of the Nazi rise to power. Thus the fuehrer will deprive himself of the opportunity of making any formal address that might be construed as a peace bid. Inspired comments in the German press, reiterating the country's determination to fight to a finish, will replace Hitler's speech.

U. S. Tells League We'll Assist Finns.

GENEVA — (U.P.) — The United States notified the League of Nations today of its readiness to assist Finland.

The notification came in the form of a reply from the department of state to an inquiry from the League of Nations.

The American note expressed the opinion that the League's staff on technical studies, by achieving co-ordinated action, could avoid the useless duplication of efforts in behalf of Finland by the various governments which have agreed to aid her.

Most of the nations canvassed by the League, including Great Britain, France, South American countries and South Africa, agreed to lend "all possible assistance" to Finland. One of the exceptions was Peru, which said she was not at this time in a position to render effective aid to Finland.

ed to be a secret, but that he wished that curiosity seekers would stay away.

"The Al Capone of today is no longer the Al Capone of recent years," John Capone said.

Dr. Joseph Earl Moore, famous syphilologist who has been treating Capone, said that his patient had shown some improvement but still was suffering from a dangerous disease and that it is too early to say whether the treatment was entirely successful.

"Mr. Alphonse Capone is suffering from a long standing nervous disorder for which he had recently undergone drastic treatment and for which further medical care is still necessary," Dr. Moore said. "It is too soon to offer an opinion as to the ultimate outcome. It cannot be determined for many months

"In the meantime, his condition is such as to make his care outside a hospital readily feasible, though in order to provide the maximum opportunity for recovery a prolonged period of rest and quiet is desirable.

"For this medical reason, interviews with newspaper reporters and photographers for the press are advised against by his medical attendants, who further wish to call on a public sense of fair play to permit him to receive this medical care which is still essential if he is to recover."

FLOOD DISTRICT PAYS $18,000 ON DEBT IN '39

Annual Report of Mansfield Board Shows Collections of $40,248.

The Mansfield Conservancy district collected $40,248 in assessments in 1939 and paid off $18,000 of its bonded debt, the district board's annual report showed today.

The conservancy district began the year with $55,000 in bonds still outstanding. They are due to be paid off in 1943.

Interest payments totaling $5,520 in 1939 were listed in the report which was filed with Clerk of Courts Fred R. Zellner. Salaries paid during the year amounted to $4,186, including $1,625 paid to Atty. C. H. Workman, the district's counsel, for services in the past five and a half year.

Issued $165,000 in Bonds.

The conservancy district was created about 15 years ago as a flood control agency in the Mansfield area. The flood control plan never materialized, but the district had issued $165,000 in bonds which must be retired.

During the period since the district was set up, interest on bonds and notes has amounted to $83,268, while $29,257 was spent for engineers, $21,663 for clerks' and employes' salaries, and $58,769 for real estate.

Members of the conservancy board are T. R. Barnes, E. H. Hartman, and C. L. Hartenfels.

MANSFIELD OHIO, MONDAY, JANUARY 8, 1940.

It is now disclosed that alcohol will harden steel—as well as arteries.

The Filipinos are nearing the time for their long-sought independence—and gosh, how they dread it.

"Our camouflage is working," chortles the Toronto Telegram as an American newspaper pictured Canadian troops "embarking on a liner at Ottawa."

Looking Beyond the War

HOWEVER the European war goes, it seems sure to produce great changes. Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, who has unusual facilities for information, gave these suggestions in a recent address to the Nebraska Bar association.

The chances of victory as between the two sides now lined up, he thinks, are nearly even. The war will be one of economic attrition, each side trying to wear the other down without much fighting. In such a contest Britain and France have a somewhat better chance because of their superior resources.

If Germany wins, he says, our American government and economy will be the last free system left anywhere, and will become the first major objective of German arms seeking world domination.

If the Allies win, he thinks our institutions will be in no way endangered. "Nevertheless an Allied victory would precipitate a grave crisis in world economy, which we would feel profoundly." Trade barriers in a reorganized Europe would disappear. There would be a European customs union and a sort of loose United States of Europe. That would mean keen competition for us.

Then to keep equality in world markets, he suggests, we would have to organize some kind of economic union on this side of the Atlantic, possibly a unified system of trade flowing freely throughout the whole Western hemisphere.

Modern Cars Require Modern Highways

FITTING highways to the requirements of steadily increasing motor traffic promises to be among the major projects of the 1940-50 decade, if present emphasis on this subject is a dependable criterion.

A plea for highways suitable to modern needs has been submitted to congress by Thomas H. McDonald, federal commissioner of public roads, who finds two main weaknesses in the highway building program all over the country. Main arterial highways that seem safe to the average motorist are described as actually "trails of death and injury," and the building of modern thoroughfares to carry motor traffic through cities has been neglected.

Development of automobile and truck traffic has been so rapid, since the Model T era, that highway construction has not kept pace with it and ordinary city streets are not designed to carry the traffic load placed upon them.

Diverting freight shipments from railroads to mammoth trucks has served to further complicate the traffic situation and many other cities are in the same predicament as Mansfield in not yet having truck routes AROUND the city, to prevent congestion of main thoroughfares.

An aggressive program of building four-lane, divided highways, with truck operators bearing the cost of providing their own roadway, separated from passenger traffic, is the goal toward which this new decade should aim.

According to Mr. McDonald the American people are spending two billion dollars a year for highways, with only a small part of it going into modern highway building.

Revived Interest In History

THE best-selling novel about the Civil war, "Gone With the Wind," did more than furnish material for a movie. It started a wave of national interest in the old South of the Confederacy.

Douglas Southall Freeman, author of a biography of Robert E. Lee and an authority on southern history, was asked by many people what books they should read next after "Gone With the Wind." In answer, he gave a series of talks, naming less weighty volumes first. The demand for advice grew, so he dug into the subject and got together an elaborate bibliography, which he has published with comments in a volume entitled "The South to Posterity."

Dr. Freeman has found that many northerners and westerners, reading novels and history of that period, become strong champions of the South. It has led him to wonder, he says, whether the descendants of the people who lost that war are not winning the peace.

At any rate, it should be salutary for any great number of Americans to become better informed about any period of this nation's history. Some phases of our development have been neglected in the school texts, and others overemphasized. A deeper understanding of our country's settlement and the endless struggle for freedom and progress will have value.

Allow Freedom of Ideas

FREE SPEECH is frequently regarded as a safety measure—a right under which a man may speak out in his own defense. Under it he may criticise the government and attempt to bring about a correction of abuses. Crackpots pour out their feelings in words instead of working up revolutions or committing individual acts of violence.

Free speech has a more constructive use, as described by Dr. Barclay Acheson, associate editor of the Reader's Digest. Addressing a meeting of the National Commercial Teachers federation he said:

"[illegible]

He cites as examples of this process the abolition of slavery, the establishment of our public school system, the enfranchisement of women, and the creation of our juvenile courts.

The really foolish ideas which are aired under our system of free speech usually perish and die when exposed to free discussion and criticism.

At least one doctor says sleeping is a fine cure for insomnia—and it's a nice trick if you can do it.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The story of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" is, as you know, the story of Alexander Woollcott in real life. It is a sort of pleasant libel against an important and engaging character, and when the authors of the play have him usurping people's homes in the grand manner, insulting his host, and imposing his brilliant if erratic will on those unfortunate yet lucky ones who spend a fortnight under the same roof with him, they may conceivably be exaggerating the case. But only slightly.

This department has had much to say of the play this fall and of the eccentricities of Mr. Woollcott through the years. It is, then, with genuine satisfaction that we pass along an incident in the life of this wandering lecturer-author-critic, relayed to us by W. R. Hunt, of San Marcos, Texas.

* * *

AS YOU know, Mr. Woollcott is at the moment on a nation-wide lecture tour. Arriving in San Antonio, he immediately called in a stenographer and dictated an awe-inspiring amount of work. It might be noted in passing that Woollcott is an agile word-slinger. After getting this chore off his chest he went into a lengthy conference, or perhaps it would be more accurate to say gab-fest, with certain of San Antonio's elite. 'Twas in the middle of this chat that the telephone jangled blatantly.

Mr. Woollcott frowned. He rumbled into the telephone, "This is Woollcott speaking."

Whereupon a delicate, feminine voice replied, "Mr. Woollcott, the dictionary you ordered has been delivered at the hotel desk. Shall I send it up?"

"Dictionary!" cried Woollcott. "Who said I ordered a dictionary!"

The dialog that followed this remains obscure, but while the windows rattled and the walls were buckling, it gradually was ascertained that the stenographer—baffled perhaps by the Woollcott wordage—had herself sent out for a dictionary to facilitate transcription of her notes.

Thus it was that Old Alex tarried briefly in old San Antone. This incident indeed might be a page from the biographical fable of George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart.

* * *

BEFORE leaving the engaging subject of the Woollcott manner, a line from one of his criticisms of a play might be in order at this time. Woollcott always shot first and then asked questions afterward. On this occasion the play concerned the theft of some gems—a string of pearls, if I remember—and the subsequent action was all a network of baffling clues that lead nowhere and left the audience completely in the air.

Unfortunately, the way the leading woman delivered her lines that night was displeasing to Mr. Woollcott, who summed up the mystery of the gems in his review in this manner: "From the way the leading lady spoke her lines, I thought for awhile she must have had them in her mouth."

That is Woollcott.

Views on Electric Rates.

Editor News-Journal:

For some time I have been giving much thought and study concerning the price of electric current, as it effects our city and the private consumer.

I always have had, and still have, the best interests of our citizens and our city at heart. And now having been relieved of any official responsibilities connected with our city, I have more time to reflect upon some of the vital questions which have to do with our city's welfare.

I find by studying a recent copy of a report compiled by the federal power commission showing the rates charged for electric current in every community, village and city in Ohio, that we in Mansfield are paying much more for our electric current than many other cities in our state. The cities with the lower rate get their current from municipally-owned plants, while those paying the higher rate are furnished their current by privately-owned power-producing companies.

The rates given below have to do with current used for "lighting and small appliances" and is comparable to those in the larger brackets.

Galion, whose current is furnished by The Galion Electric Light Dept., municipally-owned, furnish electric current as follows: Minimum charge, 50c for 16 KWH; the next 15 KWH, 50c; the next 25 KWH, 75c; and the next 40 KWH, $1.20. In Mansfield the minimum charge is 85c for 5 KWH; the next 15 KWH, $1.35; the next 25 KWH, $1.85, and the next 40 KWH, $2.50.

From the report of the federal power commission, I find that municipal-owned electric plants in Ohio, are furnishing much cheaper power than is charged in our city.

I think the people of Mansfield should be fully informed on this subject.

Up Go Legal Speeds.

Speed limits for automobiles have been revised, made more sensible and generally less restrictive in 15 states during the last year. It is interesting to compare these laws with those of the early days of motoring.

It seems incredible that the first laws regulating speed of mechanically propelled vehicles on highways fixed the limit at four miles an hour. That was in England. The first motor vehicle law in this country was passed in New York State in 1904. It fixed the maximum rate of speed at 20 miles an hour.

What would those early legislators have remarked had someone predicted that 60 miles an hour would be legalized in several states of the Union by 1940? And the latest development is the "prima facie" speed limit which permits the motorist to prove in court that his exceeding the speed limit of 60 miles or more was "reasonable and prudent." Several states now have laws recognizing that right.—Detroit News.

I've No Use For Goodness That Doesn't Take Chances.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE NO USE for Goodness that never takes chances. Right Guys who never run risks give me a pain in my neck. In fact, I've grave doubts whether such passive behavior should be rated as Goodness at all.

Real Righteousness is a chancey proposition—and never common or popular. The reason's plain. For Goodness runs contrary to comfort and safety—and, generally speaking, raises Cain with both.

Righteousness isn't a natural impulse. Our ancestral Grammas and Gramps weren't born hoping for harps and halos. They were born high-tailing it from malice and meanies. They lived in constant peril, their one constant concern being for their own safety. As a consequence, they were selfish, cruel, dishonest, cowardly . . . and agin' all virtues which exposed them to danger.

Take f'rexample, Honesty. Honesty is obviously an artificial and dangerous attitude, acquired with much difficulty . . . and practiced at your own peril.

Then along you come and tell folks to be brave. So what happens? Plenty happens! Forthwith you show up the Average Citizen for the yellow-bellied coward which he is . . . and smash his cute, comfortable Design-for-living to smithereens. Is he not obliged to you? Yes, he is N-O-T. To the contrary, he hates you forever after, and devotes his remaining years to getting hunk with you!

Then there's Courage. Courage is probably the rarest virtue on earth—and most destructive. It smashes through our mortal alibis just as Honesty does—and exposes our false fronts. In short, Courage is easily Public Enemy No. 1 . . . and the pest who advocates it is shunned by all who see him coming. It's perfectly ducky to read about The Boy Who Stood On The Burning Deck—but just try and be one and see how far you get!

All of which brings me down to my first statement—namely, Goodness is both rare and risky and no game for those who won't take chances. Any hero who's worth his salt pays plenty for the privilege. He doesn't just sit around Acting Nice and keeping out of jail. He battles, not only the vileness of human nature in general, but his own weakness in particular.

We've made an old, wise man of the Christ—tempered and strong. But He wasn't. He was young and eager, warm and impetuous. He did not die, as the old die—drowsy and indifferent. He died reluctantly . . . weeping in Gethsemane . . . writhing on Golgotha . . . yet, to the end, triumphing against His own pain . . . crying—"FORGIVE THEM FATHER, THEY KNOW NOT WHAT THEY DO!" . . . whispering—"THIS DAY THOU SHALT BE WITH ME IN PARADISE!"

That was real goodness — that sobbing prayer, that tormented love — that enormous challenge! And others, dying, followed down His same, hard trail—

Not going safely, as the righteous are supposed to go—

But rashly, rotting with his lepers, as good Father Damien went.

Or laughing, as old Socrates, who chose the hemlock to betrayal of the Truth.

THEY WERE GOOD — DANGEROUSLY.

THEY PLAYED THE GAME WITH PROUD AND RECKLESS HANDS!

And, thinking of them, I despise the Righteous Tribe who feel it is enough to keep the law . . . and manage, somehow, to stay out of jail.

GOODNESS STAKES ALL IT HAS ON FIGHTING DECENCY. GOODNESS RISKS ALL IT HOPES ON ONE BRIGHT GLEAM OF TRUTH. GOODNESS TAKES CHANCES . . . LAUGHS . . . REGARDLESS OF THE COST!

And those who don't, says I, aren't worth their rayon wings!

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

To Get a "Black Eye."

That anyone slandered, libeled, or whose reputation has been damaged should be said to have received a "black eye" seems logical metaphorical usuage.

However, these words for punishment or humiliation, though figurative, won a background not apparent to superficial contemplation.

During medieval days in France, it was the practice to mark thieves and felons by giving them what was known as a "black eye."

This was not physically inflicted, but with a solution of pitch painted upon the skin around one eye.

Under severe penalties for disobedience, the culprit was forced to wear this brand for the length of his sentence, returning for reapplications, if necessary, so that all who saw him would know him for a dangerous character.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Homer Cummings' statement that the surprise invitations to Republican leaders to attend the Jackson day dinner had the president's approval was only part of the story. The untold part of the story was that the whole idea originated with Roosevelt.

At the time the invitations were sent he was in the process of writing his message to congress, in which he pleaded so earnestly for "national unity." It occurred to him that it would be a fine gesture to inspire such unity to ask Republican leaders to the Jackson day dinner. When he sprang the idea on some intimates they thought he meant to pull a cute joke on the GOP.

But the president assured them he was very serious and was convinced the Republicans would accept. The advisers didn't think so, but he went ahead and personally dictated the invitation which Cummings sent.

Congress Snapshots.

THE president's mother seemed more interested in what he said in his message to congress than in how he said it. Seated in the White House section of the house gallery, she followed the address from a mimeographed copy never once lifting her eyes from the manuscript. . . . On the other hand, Mrs. Roosevelt, seated next to her, kept her eyes fixed on her husband. . . . Neither applauded but "Sistie" and "Buzzie," who sat on the lap of Frederic Delano, the president's uncle, enthusiastically joined in the ovations. . . . The one congressman on the Republican side of the house who applauded with any show of cordiality when Roosevelt entered was his fellow New Yorker, Bruce Barton. . . . In ladies' gowns, the sensation of congress was Mrs. Millard Tydings of Maryland, attired in a blue military blouse with brass buttons and large yellow epaulets. . . . Biggest attraction to senators was a large gift box of tangerines in the Democratic cloakroom. They clustered around the box with hands and mouths full of fruit.

Goering to USA?

FOREIGN diplomats stationed in Berlin, Moscow and Rome take it for granted that their embassies and legations are wired with dictaphones and their telephones tapped. And the American embassy in Berlin regularly uses this fact to get messages across to the German government which it does not want to deliver direct.

One such message was delivered to Field Marshal Goering some time ago to dissuade him from visiting the United States.

The beefy No. 2 Nazi was red hot to cross the Atlantic. He had convinced himself he would make a big hit in New York, so with characteristic bluntness he angled for an official invitation. Naturally this was the last thing Washington wanted. The state department foresaw all sorts of embarrassment, and instructed the Berlin embassy to stop Goering somehow, some way. The problem was a poser until the embassy staff hit on a brilliant idea.

It was arranged that an American friend visiting in Berlin, should telephone an official at the embassy and inquire what there was to the report that Goering was going to the United States.

"You just ask me the question," the embassy aide explained, "and don't be surprised at what I say. Just act as if it were a private chat between us."

The next day the friend telephoned, asked the arranged question and got this reply:

"Yes, it is true. The marshal seems bent on going over. He doesn't seem to realize what he'll be up against. Of course, the government can mobilize enough police and troops to protect him, though I don't have to tell you that it will be one tough job. The marshal apparently is wholly unaware of the fact that in the U. S. he is one of the most hated men in the world."

Two days later, the official German press service carried a statement declaring that Goering had abandoned his plans to visit the United States.

Anti-Lynching Headache.

JUST at the moment it isn't taxes, budget cuts, farm relief or any of the other big controversial issues that worry Democratic congressional leaders. What's bothering them is a hold-over measure about which very little has been said—anti-lynching.

This bill is due to come up in the house this week, and quick passage is certain. House rules bar a filibuster, and with the Republicans lining up for anti-lynching, it will go through in short order. But the senate is a different story—and that's why the Democratic generalissimos are unhappy.

Debate is wide open in the senate. Furthermore, the Democrats are split wide open. Such staunch New Dealers as Alabama's Lister Hill and Florida's Claude Pepper are at opposite poles on the anti-lynching question to such equally ardent northern New Dealers as Bob Wagner of New York and Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania. Even among the anti-New Dealers there is wide divergence of view. Glass of Virginia, George of Georgia, and Smith of South Carolina are against; with Van Nuys of Indiana, Burke of Nebraska, and Gerry of Rhode Island for the bill.

All of which is distressing to Democratic leaders. Their most vital objective is party harmony. That was the burden of Roosevelt's message to congress and also the refrain sung both publicly and privately around the Capitol.

So what the leaders would like to do is quietly pigeonhole the bill. But the Republicans will see to it that that doesn't happen.

In a major election year it is smart politics for them to force a showdown on anti-lynching. Also, by doing this they add fuel to Democratic factionalism. Much as they hate to have to do it, the Democrats will again have to face the music on an issue that has been a painful headache to them for several decades.

Ant Hill In Winter

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WHILE walking through the meadow this snowy morning, I came upon what looked to be a stump about 20 inches high, sealed over with four inches of snow. I kicked it at the top with my boot, expecting to feel the resistance that a solid piece of wood would give. Instead it moved, shook and shivered, with numerous breaks in the crusted cover, then came back to its original shape.

I took my hand and brushed the snow from this peculiar mound, and scraped it clean along the sides. What I saw standing erect and straight before me was the winter home of a colony of ants. The tall flexible shelter stood even with my knees. The outside was sealed with grains of sand, bits of hardened clay and wood. I pushed my fingers into the grainy side halfway from the ground and found the covering was almost one inch thick.

I listened carefully when I tore the spongy side away, but did not hear the slightest sound. The little insects were benumbed and mute within their well-built house. I poked my finger in full length, where the side was torn away, and was sure I felt some warmth.

Looking closer, through my glasses I saw that I had cut through runways, narrow thoroughfares, and larger chambers near the center where great numbers of plump white larvae were stored. About these rooms in chainlike heaps the ants moved feebly, or not at all. The tide of life seemed to almost have ebbed away. Those lying outside the chainlike heaps had slowly moving legs and drooping antennae. In contrast to their usual agility, they were a morbid sight.

The weighty, chambered structure was built high and round, supported by stiff rodlike shoots of swamp grass. These stood like strong round pillars about the corners of the rooms. This great apartment house was planned as though by farseeing engineers, and built by blueprints of some great ant architect.

Not only was this bunch of swamp grass used as pillars for the house, but throughout the upper portions white and pale green shoots were slowly coursing through the yielding mound. The warmth within caused by rotting wood and decaying organic matter was sufficient to cause the living pillars to put forth splendid penetrating shoots that are not useful to the plant alone. When warmer days come, these hints of green will serve as a constantly increasing food supply for the ant colony.
